FDR Asks 100-Billion '43 War Budget

16 BILLION IN NEW TAXES OR SAVINGS URGED

President Tells Congress His Revenue Request Represents 'Maximum War Program.'

TOPS ALL OTHER NATIONS

Repeats Request For $25,000 Net Income Limit as He Lists Finance Needs.

By IRVING PERLMETER

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt laid before congress today a $100,000,000,000 war budget to speed the day of victory, and to help raise this record sum he asked for $16,000,000,000 in additional taxes or compulsory savings.

Altogether, Mr. Roosevelt estimated government spending in the fiscal year beginning July 1 at $109,000,000,000, and he said in a message to the lawmakers, "This budget represents the maximum program for waging war."

The new tax program he suggested included a $25,000 limit on the income of anyone after payment of taxes, regardless of the source of his income.

The budget, which estimates spending for the 12 months beginning July 1, not only dwarfed anything in the history books, it represented more than the annual money expenditures of all the other belligerents on both sides of the war, put together.

It was nearly three times what Germany is spending, four times England, and 14 times Japan.

In the current fiscal year, America's war cost was estimated by Mr. Roosevelt at about $77,000,000,000. Add to that another $19,000,000,000 spent between Pearl Harbor and the beginning of the current year, and the American war bill between Dec. 7, 1941, and June 30, 1944, will be $196,000,000,000—just $1,000,000,000 short of all the money spent by the treasury from the day George Washington was inaugurated in 1789 until the Japs attacked about a year ago.

"Some persons may believe that such a program is fantastic," commented the commander-in-chief. "If the nation's manpower and resources are fully harnessed, I am confident that the objective of

Death Takes Chief T. M. Bell At 72

Stricken Chief

Police Chief Thomas M. Bell, 72, who died of a heart attack yesterday afternoon at his home, 569 West Fourth street, was a member of the Mansfield police department for 36 years. He died one day before he was to turn over his police duties to Meade K. Bates who returned today from a year's leave of absence during which he served as a special agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

DIES ONE DAY BEFORE GIVING UP POLICE POST

Policeman 36 Years Succumbs After Heart Attack at Home Sunday.

Police Chief Thomas M. Bell, 73, died unexpectedly in his home yesterday a few hours before he was to hand back the reins of the police department to Meade K. Bates, in whose post he was serving during the last year while Bates was associated with the Federal Bureau of Investigation as a special agent.

Mr. Bell, ill in his home at 569 West Fourth street, since Friday morning, suffered a heart attack while conversing with his son, Robert, an officer at the Plum Brook ordnance works near Sandusky.

Death followed a few seconds after he had remarked, "I suddenly feel worse right now than any time in my life." Throughout his long police career Mr. Bell had been absent from work only six days due to illness.

When visited at his home yesterday morning by several of the older members of the department Mr. Bell wanted to come downtown to his office but responded to their advice that he remain indoors. Only a few days ago he had expressed a desire to retire from police service.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Wednesday in Memorial hall where the body will lie in state from 12 noon, with a military guard of honor comprised of comrades in the United Spanish War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion. Mr. Bell was one of the very few honorary members of the World War I veterans organization. He also was a member of Venus lodge, chapter and council of the Masonic orders, the Jr. O.U.A.M. and the United Presbyterian church.

Services will be in charge of Rev. J. Campbell White of the United Presbyterian church and Rev. Grover E. Swoyer of First Lutheran church. Military rites will be conducted at the grave in Mansfield cemetery.

The body will remain at the Jones Memorial until noon Wednesday and then will be removed to the Memorial building where he devoted many off-duty hours visiting with friends and giving counsel to those who sought his advice.

His death closed one of the

A Jap convoy, heavily loaded with reinforcements for hard-pressed forces at Lae, left Rabaul (1) and was sigted by Allied planes at sea. (2). At least three transports were sunk, one with all hands, and others hit in Huon gulf (3) before reaching their objective, though a few got through and landed men. In the running fight, at least 138 Japanese planes were shot down. Meanwhile, U. S. and Australian forces were preparing for a final assault on the Japanese forces hemmed in and in a hopeless position at Sanananda (4).

BRICKER TAKES OATH 3RD TIME FOR GOVERNOR

Wears Business Clothes For Simple Ceremony Before United Nations Flags.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — John William Bricker, former country school teacher, stands in front of the United Nations' flags today to take oath of office launching him on his third consecutive term as governor of Ohio.

The 49-year-old executive, first Republican governor of Ohio to win three straight terms, was dressed in his "working clothes"—blue business suit—for the simple ceremony in his office.

As Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt of the Ohio supreme court prepared to administer the oath, using the Bricker family Bible, three other Republican state officials also were beginning their third consecutive two-year terms.

The three, taking the oath in their own offices, were Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert and Treasurer Don H. Ebright.

Another Republican, Edward J. Hummel of Cincinnati, became secretary of state, replacing John E. Sweeney, Cleveland Democrat.

That left one Democrat holding a major state elective office—Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, who is serving a four-year term and did not have to compete in the November campaign.

Bricker will address the legislature tonight on the condition of the state government, which begins 1943 with an unprecedented surplus of $45,500,000. The speech, the governor said, will also serve as his inaugural address.

Leaders of the house of representatives plan to pass tonight the partial appropriation bill, carrying $79,286,992 for operation of the state government during the next six months.

Smash Junction Points Of Two German Forces

Lone American Flier, Carrying Single Bomb, Demolishes Nazi Headquarters Building; Russians Roll On, Take 13 More Villages.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—The Paris radio quoted a message from La Linea, Spain, today as saying another concentration of Allied shipping was evident at Gibraltar. It reported that 30 freighters and numerous warships, including two aircraft carriers, were anchored off the British fortress.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Allied bombers have struck again at possible junction points for Marshal Rommel's Libyan forces and the Axis army of Tunisia, raiding Gabes, the village of Kebili west of that port, and Kairouan, an African air force spokesman announced today.

The highlight of the day's air activity was a one-man bombing attack by Maj. Phillip George Cochran of Erie, Pa., who leads a P-40 Warhawk fighter group.

Alone and carrying one large bomb, he swept over the roof tops of Kairouan and deposited the explosive in the middle of German military headquarters for the area. He reported the headquarters destroyed.

On returning from the target he was attacked by a Focke-Wulf 190. Although his plane was shot up, he held off the German fighter and returned safely to his base.

The Tunisian raids followed the first sweep by American bombers from the west against the Tripoli area in the aerial effort to smash Rommel's retreating troops before he can escape the British Eighth army and join German and Italian forces in the French protectorate on the Mediterranean narrows.

The blow was disclosed in an Allied communique yesterday announcing that B-26 (Martin Marauder) medium bombers had blasted an Axis airdrome 10 miles west of Tripoli, scoring direct hits on hangars and other military objectives.

The Allied raiders, escorted by Lockheed Lightning P-38 fighters, all returned safely after severely damaging three German fighters which attempted to intercept them, the communique said.

The B-26 raid, which was the only major activity on the part of Allied forces in Tunisia, took on special significance in view of reports Rommel's army once more was withdrawing westward in the direction of the Tunisian frontier.

Most observers believed the Axis leaders were convinced Tripoli was indefensible and were concentrating on an effort to get Rommel's forces into southern Tunisia and

Allied Airmen Shoot Down 138 In Running Fight as They Batter Enemy Convoy.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA — Allied airmen boosted to 138 the Japanese planes shot down or crippled in four days of blazing action as they pursued the remnants of a battered Japanese convoy fleeing from New Guinea yesterday and scored bomb hits on two more ships, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The announcement put an emphatic period to previous reports which described the losses inflicted on the Japanese in their efforts to land reinforcements in northeastern New Guinea as one of the most remarkable Allied aerial exploits of the war in the southwest Pacific.

The only discordant note in the sweeping Allied successes was the disclosure that Brig. Gen. Kenneth N. Walker of Glendale, Calif., had failed to return from an aerial attack on Rabaul, New Britain, on Jan. 5, when he led Rumania Sets Up New Troops For Internal Security.

ANKARA, Turkey —(AP)— Advices from Rumania said today that unrest in that country had reached such a stage that the Antonescu government had been forced to create four new divisions of internal security troops.

These reports asserted that popular mistrust of the Rumanian government, arising from reverses in Russia, was the reason for the unrest.

A usually reliable Balkan source said the German high command had presented to Gen. Michov, Bulgarian war minister now in Berlin, with a comprehensive plan of action in event of an Allied debarkation on or near Bulgarian territory.

TRIAL STARTS

Two Girl Accusers Face Film Star Flynn In Court.

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Two girls in their 'teens were called to court today to face screen star Errol Flynn with charges he committed statutory rape upon them.

Accusing the actor were Peggy LeRue Satterlee, 16, Hollywood night club entertainer, and 17-year-old Betty Hansen, who left her Lincoln, Neb., home for Hollywood in the hope she might eventually get movie roles.

Flynn denied the allegations of both girls.

Miss Satterlee charged she was violated by Flynn Aug. 2 and 9, 1941, while she was a guest on his yacht. Miss Hansen testified at Flynn's preliminary hearing that the actor attacked her Sept. 27 at the home of Fred McEvoy, British sportsman, in Bel Air.

Resuming his duties this morning as Mansfield's chief of police, Meade K. Bates declined to make known whether or not he will make application for a second year's leave in order to continue his service as a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Following a ruling by the city Civil Service commission Dec. 1 that council's release "for the duration of the national emergency" was irregular and that leaves could not extend beyond one year, Bates recently notified Mayor W. J. Locke that he

Smith told state highway patrolmen that he didn't see any man walking along the road but he later felt the car hit something on the highway. It was snowing at the time, patrolmen stated.

HUMMEL FINALLY REACHES GOAL

Cincinnatian Sworn In as New Secretary of State.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — An ambition of more than a score of years was realized today when Edward J. Hummel of Cincinnati was sworn in as secretary of state.

Hummel, who for the past 15 years has managed a Cincinnati bonding office, began his career as a clerk in the secretary of state's office.

Visibly nervous as he took the oath, Hummel's right hand trembled as he repeated the oath after Judge Charles Bell of Cincinnati.

"I know that you are a happy man today," Judge Bell said, "and there's another one who's happy—your mother, Mrs. Barbara Hummel who in her 85th year saw her son elected to this office."

Fellow Officers, Officials Pay Tribute To Chief Bell

Expressions of tribute and regret over the death of Police Chief Thomas M. Bell came today from fellow officers, city and county officials, military comrades and others who knew "Tom" during his nearly two-score years of police service from patrolman to chief of the force.

"He was the best friend I ever had—one of the finest men I'll ever know," declared Police Chief Meade K. Bates who, 19 years ago, became a "rookie" patrolman under the guidance of Captain Bell.

"Tom was the most reliable and conscientious officer I've ever known," continued Chief Bates, who returned from FBI duties today, "and because of the war he carried on smilingly in spite of ill health. His life was dedicated to performance of duty. Just recently Tom said to me, 'if the war would end tomorrow and you'd return I'd gladly retire—step out of the way of the younger men' but he sincerely felt he should ignore his own ailments to carry on in the present crisis."

Capt. John Miller, veteran police officer and stalwart admirer, said, "Tom was a splendid gentleman and a true friend" and

Capture O. S. R. Fugitive Who Fled In Chaplain's Clothes

While the Ohio State Reformatory trusty who arrayed himself in the ministerial garb of the institution's chaplain to escape Friday is behind bars in Columbus today, word arrived in Mansfield that two other fugitives had been sentenced to serve terms in the west where they were known previously to have been apprehended.

Meredith Weller, 21, was picked up in Columbus half an hour after he robbed a gasoline attendant of $65 in cash. Wearing the civilian clothes of Martin Wappner, chaplain, he walked out of the reformatory unnoticed. He was booked at Columbus on an armed robbery charge. His previous comittment in 1941 was also from Franklin county for a 10 to 25-year term on a similar count.

Sheriff Frank Robinson received word from Omaha, Neb., authorities today that Melvin Shuette and Robert Mattis, who entered Richland county homes to steal clothing, a gun and supplies after escaping from the reformatory in November, were serving terms in Leavenworth and Nebraska State penitentiary, respectively.

Shuette was sentenced to serve 15 months in Leavenworth on the FBI's count of violating the Dyer act. He was charged with transporting a car stolen in this state across the country.

Meanwhile, Carl Beer, near Amoy, and John Theodore, Bowman street road, awaited an express package from Omaha authorities of articles stolen by the fugitives and "hocked" in an Omaha pawn shop. The local men were required to send $18 to recover their possessions since that was the amount the convicts had been loaned on their security.

Aline stretched a beautiful hand for a cigaret, bent forward as she lighted it. Rogers made no gesture of helping her.

"I mean," she began again, using the favorite formula that peppered all her talk, "I mean that like a fool I told one or two of my friends that you were getting your divorce and that we were going to be married immediately. Katty von Behrens even offered their place for a honeymoon. Our honeymoon at last, Toppy, after all these years!

"I mean I actually was that close to it!" Aline added in a silence.

Rogers took his pipe out of his mouth.

"I know. That was the plan," he said briefly and put it back again.

"Well, exactly, that was the plan!" Aline echoed eagerly. "So, I mean what happened to the plan?" she demanded winningly. "I mean, here I was having to say to people, 'But he's not divorced!' Of course it made me feel like a fool. Maybe I am a fool about you, anyway."

She smiled her slow oriental smile, spread her hands appealingly.

"Not a line or a note—"

"I sent you a note, following up that talk we had before you ever went to Reno. Remember the night I told you it was all off? But I wrote it, too, and sent it by Hall."

"I never got it!" Aline said quickly.

"I don't know what happened to it, then. He came back and said he left it. But we'd talked it all out anyway. We'd settled it."

"I don't remember settling anything at all. Except that you hadn't gotten a divorce, as you promised to, and that you ran away. But I knew that you'd be home someday Toppy, and that we'd talk it over and straighten it all out. I mean I haven't changed in the least. I mean I did go to Reno and get my divorce, and so where am I?"

She looked so lovely, so entirely the alluring woman, as she said this that Rogers was more shaken than he knew. He felt the curious power she had always held over him since as a boy he had seen a 16-year-old girl dancing in black lace with poppies in her hair.

"Aline," Rogers said, "has it ever occurred to you that it might be Dina?"

"Dina!" she echoed quickly. "You mean she's fallen in love with you? That's nonsense, no matter what she says. Caroline tells me that Vere is mad to marry her now."

"I don't know that she's fallen in love with me. I know that she refuses me a divorce."

"Well, you certainly can make her."

"I don't believe I can. The last thing she said to me was, "If we are ever divorced, it will be because I ask for it, not you."

"What earthly claim has she on you? I mean don't be utterly ridiculous!"

"The claim she has on me is legal after all, Aline," he said coldly.

"Legal! Well, legal or not, you could tell the world a story about that woman that would mark her and her child, too, for life. What more does she want than that Vere will marry her?"

"I expected a letter from her today. It didn't come, but it will probably be here tomorrow," Rogers began.

"Hinz says dinner's ready, Rogers," said a voice from the doorway. The man and the woman at the fireside turned as if electrified, but if Rogers gave a perceptible start it was lost in the still deeper amazement of his companion. Dina had come into the room.

"Hello, Aline," she said, coming forward. "No Caroline? I thought she was coming too."

She slipped easily into her big chair, completing the semi-circle by the fire, smiled at the other two.

"No, nothing for me, Hinz," she said to the butler. "We'll be coming right out. I wasn't sure I could make it today, Rogers," Dina went on, "so I didn't write. I left the baby with Mother."

"I was just telling Aline . . ." Rogers began.

"Of your reconciliation," Aline put in as he paused. She was breathing a little hard.

"It could hardly be a reconciliation when there wasn't ever a quarrel," Dina said innocently. "I don't think we ever quarreled, did we, Rogers?"

"I don't believe we ever did." She knew he was all but speechless with surprise and satisfaction. "Unless it was about Russian bank," he added.

"Oh well, I won't play Russian bank," Dina declared firmly. "Because you have never mastered its intricacies, my dear." Rogers' tone held just the pleasantly teasing note of the husband and householder.

A friend's car was to come for Aline when she telephoned for it. Pleading a headache, she had Rogers telephone immediately after dinner.

While Rogers telephoned, Dina and Aline were alone for five minutes.

"You think you are very clever," said Aline, looking at the younger woman through narrowed lids. "You think that by this kind of play-acting you'll hold Rogers and incidentally hold Rogers' money. I'd like the lowdown on it. Why didn't he get a divorce?"

"I really don't know," Dina answered candidly. "I had gone up to Stockton to be with my mother. The first thing I heard was that Rogers had gone to China."

"I want to tell you something," Aline said. "I can make it very well worth your while to drop this silly nonsense and get your divorce as you promised to last winter. Vere's mother is my oldest friend, and if you happen to want to marry Vere—"

"Vere asked me to marry him," Dina said simply, "when he thought we were going to be divorced. But this way," she finished, "seemed wiser."

"It won't be wise for Rogers, I warn you," Aline began again quickly, "to have his wife discussed as you may be discussed."

"I think people have said everything of me that they can say," Dina answered, unruffled.

"I couldn't rouse the Harrison garage at all," Rogers said, when he returned, "but Hall's here. Where are you staying, Aline?"

"With Caroline. Did you tell Hall?"

"Yep, and he's waiting. But why rush? That aspirin may ease up your head any minute." But even as he spoke Rogers was walking with her toward the hall, and when he came back five minutes later he was alone.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Since stories about career girls have proved popular among the older readers in the children's department, two such books are included on the reading list next week at the public library. The novel by Mildred Foulke Meese is a sequel to two other of her stories about a college girl.

HER STAR IN SIGHT, by Mildred Foulke Meese. The story of Mary Carstens in high school and later in college has already been told and here we find her a senior in med school. Her experiences in the sorority house are described along with those in the classroom to make this an interesting yet authentic novel for older girls of life in medical school.

INSIDE OUT, by Gertrude Mallette—Linda Sherrell was convalescing on the terrace of an New York apartment. She was enjoying the prospect of a lazy day playing with her pup and visiting with her friends and sketching if she were in the mood. Little did she realize the results of her sketches, but at least recognition of her abilty came even if it did come by way of the FBI.

Your Federal Income Tax

INCOME OF MINORS

The earnings of a minor child must be included in the return of the parents unless the child has become emancipated from parental authority in accordance with the laws of the State in which he lives, or if, under the laws of the state, the child is entitled to his own earnings whether emancipated or not. The laws regarding emancipation vary in different States, and the facts in each case determine the liability for inclusion of such income in the return of the parent.

In the absence of proof to the contrary, a parent is assumed to have the right to earnings of the minor and must include them in his return. A parent may voluntarily surrender or relinquish the legal right to the services and earnings of a minor child, but if he has done so, he must be in a position to show proof of such relinquishment.

A minor is one who has not yet reached full legal age. In some states both men and women come of age, or reach the age of majority, at 21, while in some states men become of age at 21 and women at 18.

If a minor has income of his own, either through earnings over which he has legal control or income from other sources, such as property he possesses or funds held in trust for him, he must file a return (or a return must be filed in his behalf by his parent or guardian) if the total income for the year amounted to $500 or more.

Even though a child has earnings of his own his parent may be entitled to claim a credit for dependent on his account provided the parent furnished the chief support of the child.

"Your turkey, Uncle, came too late."

That's Pvt. Robert 'Tommy' Moxley, ex-Mansfield softballer, and baseballer, talking for himself and his mates in an undisclosed spot on the arid sands of North Africa.

And Mansfield Tommy isn't talking to his old pal, Uncle Jake. He's talking to no less a gent than Uncle Sam himself.

"Your turkey, Uncle, came too late," says Tommy, "for Christmas. But when it got here—yum, yum."

But let Tom tell it as he actually told it in a letter to Luther McCally of 584 W Fourth street.

"Our turkeys didn't arrive in time for Christmas, but I see the cooks have some in today, so perhaps we will have our Christmas dinner a few days late. Better late than never."

Our Tom was never one to wait 'em out at the plate—that baseball plate or the dinner platter. He liked to take his cuts, did Tom. And I'd like to have seen the cut he took at that turkey when it did arrive.

Tom tells of running across another Mansfielder, 1st Sgt. Jack Tyree, away out there in Africa, and opines that Mansfield must be pretty well represented all over the world by now.

"He sure looks good," says Tom, "and I hardly knew him. We looked at each other for about three minutes as we were standing in a chow line, and I finally asked him if he was from Ohio and he smiled and said yes, and I knew it was him. Tell Lena (that's Mrs. Jack Tyree) that I said Hello too when you tell her this."

That must be quite a feeling at that. Standing in a chow line as far away from home as Africa can be, and interested in nothing more important than the beans and stuff at the end of that line, and discovering suddenly that you had been staring at a guy right next to you whom you had known as well as that, away back there in Mansfield, Ohio.

Little wonderful world, isn't it

And Lena didn't know, until Tommy's letter arrived, that husband Jack Tyree had been made a first sergeant. It was all news to her. Extra! Moxley scoops the army!

Moxley's chow-line experience in Africa reminds me of the story a Mansfield teacher told me not many days ago about Earl Richert, the old Madison Ram, and Mansfield teacher, now flying over Africa.

Seems Richert and 10 other guys were bunked in a camel barn in the early days after the African invasion, and even though this was not the most sweet-smelling beddie-house in the world, they could stand this even better than the short rations which the then unfully organized supply lines made necessary.

Now a good old Madison Ram must eat to be happy, so Richert and his buddies bought six hogs from the natives, organized a barbecue, and the invasion was a great success.

Barons Score Win Over New Haven

(By United Press)

The Bisons knocked off the Hershey Bears, eastern division pace-setters in the American Hockey league, 3-1 at Buffalo Sunday night to rocket from third place to first in the western division.

Buffalo scored once in each period on goals by Summerhill, Bennett and Chapman while Hershey tallied its only goal in the opening session on a shot by Kilrea.

The Caps held on to second place as idle Pittsburgh dropped to third, by outscoring the Providence Reds, 7-5 at Indianapolis. The Caps spotted the Reds a 3-1 lead in the first period and then came through with two in the second but still trailed by one goal going into the third. Thomson, Fisher, Ross and Jackson all tallied to sew up the game for Indianapolis.

The Cleveland Barons scored in every period to wallop the Eagles at New Haven, 5-1. Horeck paced the Barons' attack with two goals while Giroux, Cunningham and Burlington each contributed a single tally.

Buckeyes Again Play Hoosiers

Bowling Green Books Two Games For Week.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio State makes its second Big Ten start, the Ohio conference offers 13 contests, and the Winging Falcons of Bowling Green stage two games this week as Buckeye college service cage teams offer a 37-game schedule.

The Bucks, beaten Saturday night by Indiana, 45 to 37, get their second and last crack at the Hoosier Hot-Shots tonight at Bloomington. Mount Union, defending state and Ohio conference champions, plays only one game this week, meeting twice-beaten Otterbein tomorrow night, but the high-flying Falcons, far out front in the current race, invade Findlay Tuesday and entertain the Romulus Air Base team Saturday.

Bowling Green, with 10 straight conquests, ripped Ohio Northern's Polar Bears from the undefeated list Saturday, 70 to 47, after smothering Findlay 78 to 33 earlier in the week. Mount Union is in second place behind the Bee-Gees with five wins.

Ohio squads, breaking even in four starts against foreign foes last week, have won 22 and lost 21 tilts with out-of-state opponents.

Kent State, after losing six in a row, broke into the victory column Saturday with a forfeit win over Lawrence Tech, while Oberlin ran wild for a 72-46 win over Kenyon, the greatest scoring splurge by the winners since 1911. Kenyon's Russell Lynch, however, took the game's individual honors with 20 markers.

Bowling Green's Wyndol Gray, with 55 points in last week's pair of contests, ran his nine-game total to 251 — which is more than 27 of the state's 42 teams can boast.

The week's schedule:

Monday: Ohio State at Indiana, Muskingum at Marietta, Ashland at Kent State, Toledo at Marshall.

Tuesday: Denison at Kenyon, Otterbein at Mt. Union, Bowling Green at Findlay, Miami at Cincinnati, Xavier at Ohio U, Wittenberg at Dayton, Ohio Wesleyan at Heidelberg.

Wednesday: Baldwin Wallace at John Carroll, Hiram at Kent State, Defiance at Bluffton.

Thursday: Ashland at Ohio Northern, Wooster at Otterbein, Capital at Denison, Geneva at Youngstown.

Friday: Miami at Ohio Wesleyan, Western Reserve at Buffalo, John Carroll at Akron.

Saturday: Denison at Oberlin, Case at Wooster, Kent State at Wittenberg, Heidelberg at Capital, Otterbein at Kenyon, Ohio Wesleyan at Muskingum, Romulus Air Base at Bowling Green, Bethany at Marietta, Toledo Navy at Ashland, Miami at Ohio U, Western Reserve at Colgate, Akron at Baldwin Wallace, Westminster at Hiram, Xavier at Toledo, Cincinnati at Wilmington, Marshall at Dayton.

Horses Take Monday Off

Equine Holiday Called By Nation's Tracks.

NEW YORK — (NS) — Lo the poor horse player

As if it weren't bad enough that Hitler, Hirohito and Major F. H. (Butch) LaGuardia came along to interrupt his almost absolute system of beating the races, dear old Pete (4 horse) parley esq., awakened today to find himself as helpless as a guy in San Quentin with a hot tip on the fourth at Guadalcanal.

For the first time since 1930 not a single track was operating today; not a single daily double "almost" clicked; not a single 1-5 shot ran dead last.

The recent shutdown of Tropical park and Hialeah, Fla., because of the OPA ban on pleasure driving plus the fact fair ground track New Orleans, never operates on Monday left the two dollar 'improvers of the breed' around the nation, a homeless legion with a full 24 hours to improve their "systems" and bolster their bankrolls.

There is absolutely no truth to the rumor Mayor LaGuardia, the gentleman who thinks horses should pull garbage wagons, and not thousands of citizens to race tracks each year declared a half-holiday in honor of the occasion.

G. Lantz Leads Muzzle Loaders

G Lantz took first place in the 30-yard off-hand shoot of the Mansfield Muzzle Loader Rifle club Saturday with E. Wagner second and J. Baldinger third.

L. Church won the string measure three-shot event with a string of only 1.87 inches. E. Wagner second and Lantz third. Lantz was high for the shoot with 66.6 per cent, while Baldinger and A. Wagner tied for second at 46.6.

In the 50-yard rest shooting E. Adams was first with a 1.75 inch string for three shots, E. Light was second and T. Nelson third. Shooting for group, Nelson was first with three shots measuring .77 inches across, E. Adams was second and Light third.

FELLER'S FATHER DIES, WAS BOB'S FIRST COACH

VAN METER, Iowa —(AP)— One of the finest father-and-son partnerships in the world of sports was at an end today.

William Feller, 56, father, boyhood coach and counsellor of baseball's, Bob Feller died yesterday after a long illness. Death came in the $25,000 farm home which Bob built for his parents with his income with the Cleveland Indians.

When Bob was eight his father began giving him regular practice in hurling, playing catch long hours with the youngster when the day's chores were done and sometimes at night in the barn.

Bob who left the Indians to join the navy is believed to be at his gunnery station somewhere at sea.

Dorais Likes Passing Game

His Lions Can't Do Any Worse Than 1942.

DETROIT —(AP)— Professional football is essentially a passing league, and that's why the many followers of Charles E. (Gus) Dorais are convinced that he will make good in the National league as new coach of the Detroit Lions.

Dorais was football's first great forward passer three decades ago while pitching aerials at Notre Dame to his roommate, End Knute Rockne, and his University of Detroit elevens for 18 seasons have used the airplanes for nearly a .700 winning average.

"You know, we can't do any worse than the 1942 Lions," Dorais remarked dryly as he signed a contract over the weekend as head coach and part owner of the pro club. Last fall the Lions dropped all 11 games for a record.

While Owner Fred L. Mandel, Jr., disclosed no terms, Dorais is believed to have signed for five years at $12,000 annually, with a minimum of $7,500 a year if the league folds for the duration.

Lloyd Brazil, one-time brilliant halfback under Dorais, evidently is in line for the university job. Since his graduation, Brazil has been backfield coach and graduate manager of athletics.

Sugar Ray Robinson Is Boxing's Comeback Champ

By WALTER L. JOHNS
(Central Press Sports Editor)

It was almost midnight that late March night in 1939 when New York newsmen gathered about Henry Armstrong, the "fistic man of the hour," to congratulate him on his knockout of Davey Day, in the 12th round to defend successfully his welterweight title for the sixth time.

"Hammerin' Hank," the dark dynamiter who had won three world's boxing titles in 10 months, spoke his piece:

"I'll fight anybody, anytime, anywhere."

Not quite two years later, boxing writers gathered around Henry Armstrong after the gallant little fighting man again left the Madison Square Garden ring after 12 rounds. This time, however, Henry had been kayoed, beaten severely by Fritzie Zivic.

Perhaps Henry didn't say it, but if he had, the words would have been much the same except for the word "WON'T" which he would have inserted after "I'll."

Henry Armstrong, called the greatest fighting machine in boxing history, was through.

Little Henry, who had given up his feather title in 1939, who had lost his lightweight crown to Lou Ambers—the man he won it from—and who had lost his welter tiara to Fritzie Zivic the previous October, was a beaten man and his ring career was over.

But was it? Henry Armstrong needed the money.

He underwent an operation on sensitive scar tissues around his eyes, which he complained bothered him when he retired, and given the okay by the California boxing commission, he began a remarkable comeback.

That was seven months ago. Henry has had 16 fights since then. He has won all but one, his latest being a decision over Jimmy McDaniels in Los Angeles. Most of the fights have ended in technical knockouts for Henry. Included among his victims was Zivic, who had lifted Henry's crown and then had beaten him to a pulp.

Henry's pocketbook is bulging again, he having collected better than $135,000 since he began his comeback.

So today, gallant little Henry Armstrong stands on the threshhold of ring greatness again. But first, Henry will undergo a tonsilectomy. Then he gets a real test, one that the experts fear might be the second last rung in his comeback climb or — the beginning of the end again.

The test is his scheduled fight, Feb. 19, with Beau Jack, the Atlanta shoe-shine boy who is recognized (not by the N. B. A.) as lightweight champion.

Should Henry get by Jack, the next step would be a match with Sugar Ray Robinson, the No. 1 ring sensation of the day who is hailed as the "uncrowned" welterweight champion.

An Armstrong-Robinson bout in New York would draw, 'tis said, in the neighborhood of $80,000, with Henry getting himself a nice slice.

Some criticism has been leveled against gallant little Henry's comeback attempts, for fighters who fight as often as Henry did often wind up blind. They fear Henry's eyes may not be as good as they should be, and a continued ring career may cause untold damage.

"Hurricane" Hank's present manager, George P. Moore, is reported to have forwarded affidavits to the New York Athletic Commission establishing that the negro's fighting eyes are in good condition. The planned Armstrong-Jack bout is expected to gross more than $70,000 with each fighter reported down for 30 per cent.

Henry Armstrong was born in St. Louis, Dec. 12, 1912, and began fighting there at the age of 17. He moved around a bit and finally would up on the coast. It was there he began his long climb to ring success. After the late Eddie Mead bought Henry's contract, the triple-champion began to click.

One kayo after another made him famous. He was one of the busiest workmen ever to enter the ring. He could punch with both hands, and hit mighty hard. His weaving, bobbing style was copied by amateurs everywhere, especially by young fighters of his own race.

He finally hit New York in 1937 and kayoed Mike Belloise in four rounds. Then he beat Also Spodli. From then on he rung up one kayo after another until he met Petey Sarron in New York for the feather title. Henry biffed him out in six heats to win his first crown.

He added a little weight and in May, 1938, he met Barney Ross for Ross' welter title. Henry won it in 15 rounds. Three months later Henry took Lou Ambers' lightweight crown.

The negro buzz-saw gave up his 135-pound title because he couldn't make the weight. He lost his 135-pound title to Ambers in a return match but successfully defended his welter crown 17 times before Zivic grabbed it in 15 rounds late in 1940.

PEPPER BOSSES WINGS

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—(AP)—The Rochester Red Wings, who finished in the International baseball league cellar last year, will make their 1943 try with a new player-manager, John (Pepper) Martin, formerly of the National league's St. Louis Cardinals. He succeeds Ray Hayworth.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— When this business of trying to train baseball clubs in the frigid north first came up, we asked Hugh Fullerton, sr., about it, since pop's baseball experience goes back to when southern trips were something of a novelty . . . "I remember listening to Anson, Ryan, Burns and Mike Kelly tell about training in the snow banks on the lake front at Chicago," Pop writes, "and how Mike shovelled snow and practiced hook slides into the snow at second . . . We trained at some funny places: Waycross, Ga., (where we were chased out of town after one week and went to Savannah), Hot Springs, Kansas City, New Orleans, Selma, Ala., Galveston, Shreveport . . . One spring Chicago went to West Baden, Ind., for ten days then at the University of Illinois and was in fine shape when it started barnstorming . . . The best conditioned club I ever saw trained at Hudson, N. M., and hardly saw a baseball until a week before the season started, merely rode horses, climbed mountains and ran around the desert. They were eager to play ball when the season started. . . . Maybe this will cure a lot of bunk."

A COOL CUSTOMER

One guy who (like Joe DiMaggio) didn't have to worry about spring training, pop reports, was a big pitcher named Rog Denzer, who lived in Minnesota when the Cubs bought him . . . Rog didn't report for training and didn't answer letters so a scout was sent after him, arriving on a sub-zero day . . . After nearly freezing on the way to Denzer's farm because the liveryman thought it was too cold to take a horse out, the scout was directed to the barn . . . There he found Rog, in his undershirt, pitching at a sack of bran and cutting loose with all his speed . . . "In July of that year," pop adds, "Rog complained that he was a hot weather pitcher and couldn't work well on chilly days."

SPRING BRAINING

Another idea from the same source is that most of the feuds within baseball clubs start from boredom . . . "Most of the players are sick of ball before the season starts, sick of exhibitions and anxious to start real play."

Mansfield Battles Ashland

Visitors Lead N. C. O. Loop; Win Five Straight.

RIDING high on a five-game victory streak, Ashland high school cagers invade senior high gym tomorrow night seeking revenge over Coach Vern Hoffman's Tygers.

For the first time in history, Mansfield last season scored three victories over Ashland, twice during the regular schedule and again at the Sandusky tournament.

Ashland probably hasn't forgotten that record, and although the "A's" will be meeting a different set of Tygers tomorrow night, they'll be after revenge nevertheless.

Last Friday night Ashland chalked up its fifth straight win, and its third straight in the North Central Ohio league, by trouncing Bucyrus, 39-22, at Bucyrus, and now leads the N. C. O. title race.

In spite of the easy win over the Red Men, Ashland was having an off-night at Bucyrus in the offensive department, scoring only nine points the first quarter, five the second, and 10 the fourth, but showed a flash of form in the third with 15.

This weeks looms as the big week on the Ashland schedule, with Marion booked Friday night in a game which should decide the N. C. O. championship, and Coach Bruckner's boys will be prepared to go all out in their Mansfield-Marion assignments.

Without taking anything away from a Lima Central team which deserved to and did win over Mansfield Saturday night, the Tygers were definitely off form in that game, particularly in the first quarter, and didn't find their best combination for the night until the last half.

Perhaps the Tygers also will bounce back from that off-night to give the fans a thriller against their Ashland rivals.

Hoffman indicated today he will start the same team that put on the second-half rally against Lima: Snowden, Hahn, Lamoreux, Les Myers and McBride or Baker.

Reserves will meet St. Luke's in the preliminary game at 7 o'clock, with the big game scheduled at 8:15. Officials will be A. N. Smith of Elyria and Jay Winters of Bucyrus.

Star Returns As Team Coach

Student Pilots Quint That Won Tournament.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK—(AP)—Rudy Baric of West Virginia university is offered as the prize example of how topsy-turvy the war has made the college sports world in a smgle year.

A year ago Baric and his Cinderella teammates pioneered a journey to New York where they were seeded last in the national invitational basketball tournament.

They remained long enough to win the title. Baric, known to every spectator and player as "The Goon," took added honors as the tourney's most valuable player.

This week the Mountaineers return with Baric, still a student at West Virginia, but as the team's coach. He took over when the previous mentor, Dick Raese, joined the navy.

Although the Mountaineer squad has only one of the eight regulars of last season, it has won four of five games and Wednesday encounters unbeaten New York university.

Arkansas, which shared the southwest conference crown with the Rice Owls last year and will be the host this week-end in a two-game series, already has won a pair of duels from Southern Methodist while Rice was stopped by Texas. Texas Christian, another favorite, was crushed by Texas A and M, 53 to 26, Saturday but has the chance to regain some prestige tonight against Rice.

Tennessee, which already has won two southeastern conference games and is at the top of the ladder, helps Kentucky open the Wildcat campaign at Knoxville Saturday.

In the southern loop, Duke, the defending champion, tonight entertains George Washington.

Illinois finds out how good it is tonight when it invades Wisconsin. The Badgers, their attack built around Johnny Kotz and Ray Patterson, outlasted Northwestern Saturday night, 67 to 65, while Illinois won as it pleased from Michigan, 47 to 34, in Big Ten openers.

THEATERS

Stage Band.

Art Jarrett, who is handsome enough for a screen hero, brings his band to the Madison stage Tuesday for a one-day engagement. In fact Jarrett did appear in several film features with such stars as Joan Crawford, Carole Lombard, Ann Sothern and Sonja Henie. His present band is comparatively new and includes most of the members of the late Hal Kemp's noted organization. The bandleader got his start at Chicago's Black Hawk restaurant where Kemp was stationed so long. Lupe Velez in "Mexican Spitfire's Elephant," furnishes the screen attraction.

Moroccan Adventure.

The trio that started out in the "Road to Zanzibar," continue their adventures in "Road to Morocco," at the Ohio, co-starring Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour. The latter plays a glamorous Arabian princess and her helpmates appear as shipwrecked stowaways who cross her path right at a time when she is in need of assistance. The picture is embellished with several new tunes, a bevy of dancing girls and scores of players including Dona Drake and Anthony Quinn.

Newspaper Yarn.

A keen-witted managing editor who is forced to conduct a lovelorn column as punishment for having bungled a story is the leading character in "You Can't Escape Forever," the Ritz attraction co-starring George Brent and Brenda Marshall. He extricates himself from an embarrassing position however when, through his column, he hits upon a clue that enables him to trap a gang of racketeers. Brenda Marshall has the role of a sob-sister. "Footlight Serenade," the co-feature, presents Victor Mature, Betty Grable and John Payne in a comedy with music.

Runyon Story.

"The Big Street," Henry Fonda's starring vehicle at the Park, brings to the screen scores of odd and interesting characters made famous by Damon Runyon in his popular short story, "Little Pinks." They move about through Broadway night spots and Miami hotels as the poignant tale of a bus boy who loved a night club dancer is unfolded. Lucille Ball plays the dancer and the cast includes Barton MacLane, Eugene Paullette and Agnes Moorehead. "'Neath Brooklyn Bridge," with the East Side Kids is the second attraction.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

NARROW RANGE HOLDS MARKET SALE ACTIVITY

Individual Income For 1942 Estimated at 14 Billion Dollars By Analysts.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Prices shifted over a narrow range in today's early stock market proceedings.

Up fractionally at a quiet opening were Kennecott, United Aircraft, Anaconda, General Electric and Standard Oil (NJ).

Financial analysts studied the compilation of the commerce department which put income payments to individuals in November at $10,391,000,000 and estimated the figure for all of 1942 at $114,000,000,000.

Noted was the survey of the magazine "Steel" which reported that "sheet mills are receiving cancellations of tonnage on books, especially in lighter gauges, as consumers find delivery unlikely in the face of preponderant demand for heavier gauges rolled on continuous mills."

LIKE OLD DAYS

Denver Butchers Will Sell Buffalo Meat.

DENVER — (U.P.) — Denver's buffalo herds are going to make a contribution to the war effort, too, city officials announced.

About 40 young buffalo will be slaughtered and sold to Denver restaurants and butcher shops, thus helping to relieve the meat shortage temporarily. Proceeds of the sales will be used to maintain the remaining animals during the next year, which will aid the city's war-curtailed budget.

Denver maintains two buffalo herds in mountain parks. Some of the buffalo carcasses are saved to serve at dinners for prominent Denver visitors.

FEET JUST LIKE ICE!

KANSAS CITY — (AP) — No wonder Sergeant Charles Tiano's feet were cold! After shivering most of the night on maneuvers in Tennessee, he investigated and found he had made his bed on top of cakes of ice that had been buried in the ground to keep them from melting so that the soldiers could have cold drinks the next day.

KINDNESS KILLS DOG

VANCOUVER, Wash. — (INS) — Sooner, the mongrel that received a deputy sheriff's badge for preventing a jail break, is dead as the result of too much human kindness. The little dog, who frustrated the break by his barking, ate too much chocolate candy.

CANTON — (AP) — Chairman Charles O. Tressel of city council's special airport committee announced cancellation of plans to build a municipal airport here after the civil aeronautics administration said it would not approve any of three city-proposed sites. Planes called for development of the airport by the government at a cost of $2,000,000.

FIVE ESCAPE

Saw Three Sets of Bars, Break Out of Mahoning Jail.

YOUNGSTOWN — (AP) — Five prisoners broke out of the Mahoning county jail early today by sawing three sets of bars.

The missing prisoners are Paul Broichkie, 28, indictment for armed robbery; Henry Cobey, jr., 19, James Malone, 20, and James Young, 19, charged with auto theft, and Dolph D. Curtis, 44, charged with robbery, Sheriff Ralph E. Elser said.

The men sawed two bars in their cell, two more in the cell corridor, and two in an outside window, then jumped 10 feet to the ground.

The escape was not discovered until someone called city police about an hour later, to ask whether Malone was out of jail, the sheriff reported.

GIVES TIP ON 1943 STICKERS

Put 'Em in Lower Right Corner—If You Can, Says Sours.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — It's legal to paste your 1943 auto license sticker anywhere on the windshield you want to—but it's still not a good idea.

State Highway Director Hal G. Sours said today that the stickers do not have to be placed in the lower right hand corner of the windshield as originally announced, but asked motorists to put them there if at all possible.

Reasons for waiving the requirement, he said, is the fact that many drivers already have placed federal use stamp and gasoline rationing stickers there.

INCREASE TOLL OF JAP PLANES

Allied Airmen Shoot Down 138 In Running Fight as They Batter Enemy Convoy.

a formation of Flying Fortresses and Liberators which damaged 50,000 tons of enemy shipping and shot down nine Japanese fighters.

How many men the Japanese actually succeeded in landing in their efforts to reinforce their garrison at Lae before their convoy turned tail and steamed away from New Guinea Saturday night was not disclosed.

Indicating how hard the Japanese had been hit, Allied headquarters reported American and Australian airmen had met only weak opposition as they pursued what was left of the enemy convoy across the Soloman sea to New Britain yesterday.

Of the 10-ship convoy which left New Britain for Lae on Jan. 6 and later was reinforced by two more vessels, few apparently escaped the devastating Allied aerial assaults.

At least three transports—including a heavily-loaded 14,000-ton troopship which went down with all hands—were definitely reported sunk while other vessels were damaged by bomb hits.

The enemy troops which succeeded in landing at Lae were bombed and strafed yesterday.

Allied ground forces, meanwhile, continued to maintain steady pressure on the Japanese at Sanananda point—the last center of enemy resistance on the Papuan peninsula—and increased their gains by occupying the village of Tarakena.

In announcing the loss of General Walker, General MacArthur said that much of the efficiency of the bombardment campaign of the Fifth American air force was due to his "exceptional brilliance and courage."

Battle Japs On Both Sides of River

NEW DELHI — (INS) — British troops are battling Japanese forces on both sides of the Mayu river in the vicinity of Donbaik, in the Arakan district north of the Burmese port of Akyab, it was announced officially today.

A communique from headquarters of Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, British commander for India, said that fighting also was in progress around Rathedaung, 25 miles north of Akyab.

"Our troops are maintaining pressure against the enemy defending Rathedaung," the communique said.

Heavy Allied bombers meanwhile attacked Jap-occupied villages on Akyab island, it was disclosed.

SHIP TOLL HIGH

Sea Losses More Than 4,000 Men, U. S. Reveals.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The perilous task of sailing merchant ships in the submarine-infested Atlantic has taken the lives of at least 4,000 and perhaps more than 6,000 men since Pearl Harbor.

The announced destruction of six cargo vessels in the western Atlantic last week caused the loss of 73 men killed and 87 missing—more seamen than had been reported in any previous week in several months, when the ship toll was higher.

These raised the casualty list for the 587 Allied and neutral merchantmen reported sunk in the western Atlantic over the 6400 mark. At least 3,906 men have been killed and 2,521 others recorded as missing.

EVACUEES LIKE AMERICAN FOOD

English Children In Ohio Gain Weight in Short Time; Taller Too.

CANTON — (AP) — Life in America seems to agree with the English children brought here by the Hoover company of North Canton 28 months ago to escape Nazi aerial bombings and other hardships of war in their homeland.

Seventy-four of the 81 evacuees attended a recent party with their foster parents and their families, a feature being a contest to determine how the children had fared during their stay here.

Charts in an anteroom of the hotel ballroom where the party was held showed the weight and height of the children when they arrived here. Present figures were added as they arrived for the festivities.

Comparisons showed that the 39 boys and 35 girls had gained a total of 1,332 pounds, an average of 18 pounds each. The combined increase in height was 370 inches, an average of five inches.

Height prizes were awarded to Yvonne Tunnecliffe, who has grown 11 inches, and Cyril Holding, who has added 10½ inches. Weight awards went to Angela Bovill for her gain of 36c pounds and Peter Soundy for his increase of 52 pounds.

NEWSPAPER

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

If you want to see Jeanette MacDonald go into a routine as funny as she ever did in the most sparkling Lubitsch comedy, ask her to tell you what happened to her on Thanksgiving day when she decided to look for adventure without benefit of script writer, director or camera.

Kilgallen

She had been doing concerts out of town during the days preceding the holiday, and hadn't expected to be back in New York in time to share a turkey with any of her friends, so she had declined all invitations to parties and family dinners. But she finished her entertaining and bondselling chores earlier than she'd anticipated, and Thanksgiving morning found her in New York, alone in her suite in the Sherry-Netherlands.

She thought of calling some of her friends who'd said "Now if you are in town, be sure and let us know," but she decided not to. She was tired, so she took a short nap, and when she awoke, and looked around at the four walls of the hotel bedroom, she admits she began to feel pretty sorry for herself. Here I am all alone on Thanksgiving, everyone else has a home to go to, my husband is fighting on some foreign front—I don't even know where—isn't it an awful sort of thing.

Perhaps it was thinking of Gene, somewhere in some strange place, that gave her the Big Idea. There must be many a lonely soldier boy, or sailor boy right here in New York this Thanksgiving day. Someone far away from home, with no place to go—just like Jeanette.

She would share her Thanksgiving with him.

Jeanette hopped out of bed, no longer sad but indeed quite gay, and arrayed herself in her most becoming furbelows. ("I think," she says now, "I did look nice.")

On Broadway at one of the streets in the 40's, she was waiting for the light to change when she noticed standing beside her in the crowd an American sailor—young, clean-cut, nice-looking, but a little pale, she thought, and definitely on the homeless side. Jeanette plunged right in.

"Young man," she began brightly, giving him a light tap on the sleeve, "have you had your Thanksgiving dinner?"

The gob gave her a quick are-you kidding-look. "Lady," he said, "I had three." And with that he dashed across the street, not waiting for the light to go green.

Jeanette suddenly felt frightened by the Broadway crowds. Maybe this wasn't quite the right place for picking up a lonely sailor. Maybe if they were on Broadway, that meant they were going to meet a girl or take in a movie or go bowling. But Central Park—now there is a place for people who have no place to go.

Jeanette walked up to Central Park. There she saw a soldier on a bench. A nice boy anyone could tell that. Private first class. Just sitting there, staring into space.

Jeanette went over to the bench and sat down beside him.

"It's not a very nice day," she trilled. "Is it?"

The private handed her a stony glance. "I've seen lots worse," he said. "What's the matter with it?"

Whereupon he got up and walked hurriedly away.

Jeanette went back to the Sherry Netherlands and ate milk toast in bed.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Mr. Irving Pichel, the directing man, was describing his week-end.

"I got the family ironing done—two weeks' ironing," he said.

It wasn't until later, the domestic front being what it is, that Mr. Pichel's ironing struck me as funny, not to say "ironic." At the time I simply inquired about his technique, his equipment, his speed. Mr. Pichel, a good family man, seemed to think he had done a good job. He was ready to apply the touch that made "The Pied Piper" and "Life Begins at 8:30" and is currently soothing "The Moon Is Down," to the family dry wash again.

Coons

Hollywood is a place that used to have a servant problem. But the problem is no more along with the servants who are making airplanes or building ships or keeping those carssons rolling along.

Dorris Bowdon, leading lady of "The Moon Is Down," had to be excused from the set one day to go home and take care of the nursery, whence the guardians had fled.

Applicants for domestic jobs of course, are interviewing the stars. Glenda Farrell tells of wooing one applicant with vistas of an easy life. "You'll find the work very easy," she promised. "I'm in Hollywood for studio and war work a great deal and my husband (Major Henry Ross) is at his army post—so we have little time for entertaining. Why, there'll be days when you won't even have to prepare a meal!"

"Then I wouldn't be interested, ma'am," said the prospective queen. "Sounds lonesome."

Jane Wyatt, herself a domestic soul, was baking a cake when a prospect answered her help-wanted ad. Jane was wearing wool socks sans shoes—an old Danish custom—to keep the cake from falling. Answering the doorbell, she got the critical once-over. "Land's sakes," said the firmly attired applicant. "If Miss Wyatt lets her help go 'round the house this way, it's not the kind of place I'm used to."

This is the same town where once a casual guest in a movie home had to plow past acres of servants before greeting his host. It's the same town where the guest if he had a bit of nifty persiflage to toss about had to toss it between the shoulders of the second man and the third maid both of them hovering with trays loaded with meaty hors d'oeuvres and tinkling glasses. It's the town where—ah! sweet nostalgia—Greta Garbo once complained because the gardener came every day.

But you'll have to excuse me now. I've got to get down and help with the washing. I'm thinking of asking Mr. Irving Pichel of the ironing prowess, to spend a week-end with us.

18,000 Miners Defy U. S., Stay On Strike

THREE TRAPPED IN MINE SHAFT BY EXPLOSION

Fate of Miners In Doubt, Says Patrol; Rescue Squad on Job of Finding Men.

(By Associated Press)

CAMBRIDGE—The state highway patrol reported today three miners were trapped by an explosion in the Belle Valley Mining company's workings 15 miles south of here.

The patrol said it was not known whether the three "were dead or alive."

Three other miners in the shaft when the blast occurred shortly before midnight, escaped, the patrol said. The "exact location where the others were trapped is unknown," patrolmen added, but it was thought they were about 3,000 feet from the mine's mouth.

A rescue squad from here was called to the scene and immediately began efforts to extricate the trio, identified by the patrol as James Mackey, Mike Zeleznik and Lester Berry, all of nearby Belle Valley.

Patrolmen said only six men were working in the diggings at the time.

John Wukeligh and Floyd Roeaski of Belle Valley, and Arthur Bridgeman of Sarahsville, escaped uninjured following the blast, which occurred last night.

An explosion in the mine in 1913 killed 14 miners.

Marcus Kerr, chief of Ohio's division of mines, directing rescue operations at the mine, said 17 state and federal mining engineers joined in the efforts, but were "hampered in their attempts to enter the shaft because of gas fumes."

Kerr said the cause of the blast could not be determined at once, but added that it "presumably was a gas explosion."

He described the mine as "an ordinary-sized diggings," employing about 75 men.

The explosion halted all production, Kerr said.

Kerr notified the state industrial relations department that fire probably had broken out inside the mine. J. C. Wilson, oil and gas well inspector, was en route from Columbus with a carbon monoxide gas detector, to determine whether fumes emanating from the shaft were poisonous.

LACK OF LIQUOR LAID TO STATE

Spokesman for Permit-Holders Raps Way Ohio Handles Nation's Distillers.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—The state was blamed today for a liquor "shortage" which, a spokesman for permit holders declared, threatens to force some taverns out of business within six months.

Barney Rubenstein, president of the Buckeye Liquor Dealers association, asserted Ohio and Pennsylvania were the only states experiencing a "shortage" and attributed this to the state's treatment of distillers.

"We should tell the state to sell liquor or get out of the business," he told 250 permit holders yesterday at a meeting called to consider the problem. "If it can't supply us, it should let us go direct to the distillers."

Rubenstein said numerous holders of permits to sell liquor by the glass had been restricted by the state to two quarts a day.

He denied the liquor control board's claim that there is an ample supply in retail stores, contending both the supply and variety are inadequate.

Asserting "the drys are on the march in Ohio," he said county and state-wide midnight closing measures soon would go before state legislators, continuing:

"But they won't vote you out this time. They'll just put you out of business."

The dealers named a committee to seek a conference with Gov. John W. Bricker and liquor department heads.

INFLUENCE OF TOTAL WAR ON LITERATURE, BOOK FAIR THEME

Mansfield's third annual Book Fair now under way at the Public Library emphasizes how total war has influenced literature.

Scores of books which have come out of the war the past year are among the 300 volumes on special exhibit while many others of earlier publication also deal with some phase of the conflict.

A fair-sized crowd attended the opening yesterday and the fair will continue throughout the week from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. excepting Sunday when hours from 1:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. will be observed. There is no admission.

The event will be highlighted Friday night by the appearance of Dr. Pitman B. Potter, head of the department of political science at Oberlin college. He will speak at 8:15 p. m. in the library's Larwill room on the subject, "Planning a New World." Presented under the auspices of the library Memorial board the lecture is free to the public.

Dedicated to the United Nations, the fair this year not only acquaints the visitor with America's allies through the printed page but also by a display of colorful maps and posters bearing pictures of the different countries and their people throughout the world. Art objects loaned by local residents also enhance the exhibit.

Mansfield garden clubs have added to the pictorial side of the fair by a series of decorative and telling arrangements. American tanks, guns, ships and planes in miniature are shown beneath the shadow of a winged victory in the United States exhibit. Toy soldiers guard the tiny replicas of American possessions except for the case of the Philippines where a rat with Hirohito's face symbolizes the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Enemy countries are not overlooked and a display of books, most of them written by men who have had first hand experience with the Axis including Ambassador Grey, Frederick Oeschner of the United Press, and others is supplemented by a garden club reproduction of a recent cartoon showing Uncle Sam about to whack down a limb to which Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito are clinging.

A Richland county author, Louis Bromfield is represented in the exhibit of occupied countries by his novel "Until the Day Breaks," the story of an American girl dancer in Paris at the time of Germany's occupation.

Both the John Sherman room and the Garden Center on the library's second floor supplements the fair that occupies the mezzanine. Art objects are displayed in the Sherman room while the Garden Center devotes its space to a Victory garden and other subjects.

Miss Lois MacKellar, city librarian, superintended the fair to which the entire staff lent its efforts. Mrs. Lois Pennell, Newman school librarian, made the posters and art backgrounds and Miss Virginia Chew was responsible for the art collection.

"Dear, before you go to work, will you weld on a button for me?"

A Mansfield woman is having a lot of fun relating an experience she had while making a holiday visit to an adjoining state. The train coaches were crowded and there was much milling around on the part of the passengers. When she decided to go to the dining car she noticed a young soldier, bearing a heavy pack over one shoulder, following her down the aisle. She decided it was only courtesy to open the door for him and let him pass and then much to her surprise she found herself holding the door not only for one soldier but for about 25 of his buddies all bearing similar packs. The boys all smiled and thanked her profusely and everybody in the coach had a good chuckle, including the Mansfielder, over the incident.

Four-year-old Donald Palm, Mansfield R. D. 4, has the makings of a shrewd business man. Not only did he save pennies and nickles to buy the tag for his dog, but approached the sales stand in the corridor of the courthouse alone Saturday to make the purchase. He told his name and address, the name of his brown-and-white dog, and presented his box of pennies in payment. County Dog Warden Bill Miller, who was in charge at the time, delayed counting the coin while calling attention of fellow courthouse workers to the small customer, but young Palm was in no mood to be trifled with. Approaching Miller, who had walked down the hall with his box of coins, he said: "Mister, there's more money in that box than the license will cost." There was. He got 60 cents back, and promptly!

NEW MINING THREAT RISES ON PAY BOOST

7,000 In Seven Collieries of Pennsylvania Heed Federal Warning, Resume Work.

(By United Press)

WILKES-BARRE, Pa.—Eighteen thousand anthracite miners continued their strike today, defying government demands to return to work pending adjustment of their grievances and to end a 13-day work stoppage that has caused serious coal heating shortages along the eastern seaboard.

Only seven collieries representing 7,000 miners, voted last night to return to work today and continue on their jobs for one week, while negotiators attempted settlement of the dispute which involved increased union dues. Approximately 3,000 others voted to stay out, thus ignoring demands of Solid Fuels Coordinator Harold L. Ickes, who termed the work-stoppages "intolerable."

Fifteen thousand others in 12 colleries did not vote, despite the appearance in the hard-coal fields of war department representatives and federal and state mediators.

Meanwhile, a new threat to a settlement developed when the tri-district general mine committee, at a meeting in Hazelton, indicated it would take a strike vote next Friday unless mine operators agree to reopen contracts and grant miners a $2 a day wage increase. The committee represents 20,000 miners other than those now on strike.

This committee is not recognized by John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America.

The tri-state committee, another group which has UMW recognition, appointed a committee of 15 to meet with the committee of 12, which will confer in New York tonight. The committee of 12 is a group of operators and union officials representing the anthracite industry.

Spokesmen for the 12 striking collieries said the paramount issue is the increase of monthly union dues from $1 to $1.50. They said that if their grievance was not settled by tomorrow night, other locals would probably join them.

Ship Oleo, Keep Butter At Home, La Follette Urges

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Butter for the home folks and oleomargarine for those abroad is the aim of Senator La Follette (Prog-Wis.)

In a letter to Secretary Wickard, made public today, the senator said that while an important part of the war effort was in the feeding of the Allies, "I strongly urge you to take the necessary action to preserve our butter supplies for our own armed forces and domestic consumption."

Secretary Wickard recently directed creameries to reserve 30 per cent of their butter production for war purposes.

LaFollette said use of butter substitutes "has been consistently discouraged as a matter of public policy," and "the fruits of all these past efforts will be threatened with complete destruction if now, in a period of shortage, we send our butter abroad and force our own people to use butter substitutes."

FDR ASKS 100 BILLIONS FOR VICTORY IN WAR

Sends Huge Budget Request To Congress, Urges More New Taxes.

this program can be reached, but it requires a complete recognition of the necessities of total war by all—management, labor, farmers, consumers, and public servants—regardless of party."

He did not translate his financial estimates into planes and tanks and ships—to do so, he said, would merely help the enemy.

But he gave this breakdown of the general war program: (in billions of dollars):

	1942-43 Fiscal Year	1943-44 Fiscal Year
Munitions (planes, ships, guns, etc.)..	43	66
Payrolls, travel, etc.	15	21
Industry construction	6	2
Camp, other construction	8	5
Lend-lease food, miscellaneous	5	5
Totals	77	100

Emphasizing that his figures means weapons, not coins, and that the Axis could not be swamped by money, the president cautioned:

"Victory cannot be bought with any amount of money, however, large; victory is achieved by the blood of soldiers, the sweat of working men and women, and the sacrifice of all people."

To farmers he assigned the task of feeding the United Nations, for "food is a primary weapon of war," and he budgeted $837,000,000 for federal farm aids calculated, among other things, to divert agricultural acres from luxury foods to nutrition essentials.

Besides taxes and war bonds ahead for the civilian, the president said, "Unnecessary costs and frills should be eliminated. Total war demands simplification of American life. * * * We fill out forms, carry coupons, answer questionnaires. * * * We regulate prices, wages, salaries and rent; we limit consumer credit; we allocate scarce materials; and we ration scarce consumer goods—all to the end of providing the materials of war and distributing the sacrifices generally."

Mr. Roosevelt said both he and Budget Director Harold D. Smith preferred to lay down a more explicit tax program, but the necessity of consulting congress limited them to the mere statement in the budget message:

"I believe that we should strive to collect, not less than $16,000,000,000 of additional funds by taxation, savings, or both, during the fiscal year 1944."

This sum, he said, would be on top of the $33,081,245,000 net revenues expected by the treasury from existing laws, and with these would provide enough to pay for half of the anticipated expenditures.

In a press conference, however, the president said one of his personal objectives was a $25,000 limit after taxes—which means, he said, a practical limit of $67,200—on all incomes. He said he could not understand why, in time of war, anyone should have more than that much income.

Previously, the president never went further in his public utterances than to instruct the treasury, as part of a general wage and salary regulation, to limit salaries to $25,000 after tax payments.

This rule affected only a few thousand corporation executives, and did not touch, as Mr. Roosevelt's new suggestion would, the more thousands of persons who live off of stock dividends, trust funds, royalties, bond interest, and other types of income.

He indicated the belief that the present voluntary system of buying war bonds may have to be supplemented by some compulsory savings scheme, favored putting taxes, as far as possible, on a pay-as-you-go basis, opposed a general sales tax in its usual form, and reiterated requests for mandatory joint tax returns for husbands and wives, and abolition of tax-exempt securities.

The public debt, now $112,000,000,000, will rise, the president said, to about $210,000,000,000 by June 30, 1944, requiring a revision of the present $125,000,000,000 statutory limit.

"Such a debt," he commented, "can and will be repaid. The nation is soundly solvent."

It also means, he added, that "taxes probably will never revert to their pre-war level."

More so than in last week's "state of the union" message to congress, the president appealed for political unity in today's message.

"I have read," he said, "of this bloc, and the other bloc which existed in past congresses. May this new congress confine itself to one bloc—a national bloc."

Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that his goal in preparing his budget was to buy all the output of the nation's factories and farms, leaving enough for essential civilian needs. He noted that "further efforts are necessary" to utilize even the small plants and businesses of the nation in the war effort.

Left for the ordinary civilian, the president figured, will be "an average of about $500 worth of goods and services during the year—an average reduction of almost 25 per cent in civilian consumption below the record level of the calendar year 1941."

"During the calendar year 1943," the president continued, "approximately 6,000,000 people will be needed above present requirements for the armed services and war production. This number can be obtained by transferring from less essential work, and by drawing into the working force people who have not recently sought employment. Vigorous action is required to mobilize and train our reserve of women and young people, to accelerate the transfer of workers to essential industries, and to reduce harmful turnover and migration of workers in essential industries."

The armed services alone, he said, will need 9,700,000 men by the end of this year, and the budget reflected arms to equip all of them.

In his list of things that civilians will or will not have, however, the president also made the statement that money is what they will have most in the next year. He calculated the national income at $135,000,000,000 this fiscal year, and $145,000,000,000 next year—compared with about $70,000,000,000 before Pearl Harbor and $40,000,000,000 at the depths of the depression.

Explaining that the extra taxes and savings he proposed were also designed to siphon off some of this spare purchasing power, he noted, "under war conditions a rise in profits, wages, and farm incomes unfortunately does not increase the supply of goods for civilians; it merely invites the bidding up of prices of scarce commodities.

He said families in the lower third bracket of income will have this year average earnings of $1,335, instead of $780, which was the 1935-36 average.

Outside of his "war expenditures," the president said the budget called for $9,000,000,000 of other costs, usually called "non-war," but he said these included $3,000,000,000 interest on the public debt, and $879,360,000 for the veterans administration.

He noted that the Work Projects administration has been ordered abolished, public works curtailed and asserted that other normal governmental activities have been cut practically to the bedrock of activities required by existing laws. He said further cuts could not be made unless congress repealed laws which called for these activities.

The actual total of treasury expenditures in the next year, Mr. Roosevelt added, will be $104,128,924,923, but to this should be added $4,774,123,000 of expenditures to be made outside the treasury by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, Commodity Credit corporation, and other corporations.

The Netherlands received Dutch Guiana in South America in exchange for the territory which later became New York.

turn to their own advantage the Mareth defense line which the French built along the Tripolitanian border.

"The question is," one Allied officer remarked, "which way are they going to turn it? If they turn it against the Eighth army we can attack them from the rear. If they turn it against us the Eighth army will smash them."

Before Rommel can reach the Mareth line, however, his forces must retreat some 300 miles from their present easternmost positions in Libya. That the Allied air forces in both Tunisia and Libya are ready to give him a bad mauling along the way has already been demonstrated.

Ground action, in northern Tunisia, meanwhile, remained virtually stalemated.

Developments behind the front were marked by the arrival of Vice Admiral William Glassford, jr., in Algiers for conferences with Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, presumably bearing on Dakar.

Russians Roll On, Take 13 More Towns

(By Associated Press)

The Russians announced today the recapture of 13 more towns among the Rostov-Baku railway through the Caucasus as they closed in tighter around the Georgievsk rail junction where the Nazis had been rolled back some 75 miles from Mozdok, gateway to the Grozny oilfields.

The German defenses in the Caucasus apparently were crumbling fast, and although desperation stiffened the Nazi stand in the lower Don, 60 miles from Rostov, and on the central front west of Velikie Luki, there was no sign that the Russian drive had bogged down.

With Germany's air power spread even thinner by the broadening scope of Allied aerial offensives, the Russians, once badly out-numbered in the air, reported a three-to-one ratio of victories last week—313 enemy planes destroyed against a loss of 93 Soviet aircraft.

Essen Devastated By RAF Block-Busters

LONDON—(AP)—Essen, site of the Great Krupp armament works, lay smoking today under the effects of a devastating bombardment by the RAF, which unloaded a great weight of bombs—including two-ton "blockbusters" — on the city Saturday night in the fifth raid of the Ruhr in seven nights.

Pilots returning from the assault, which was carried out under excellent weather conditions, said they had left vast fires raging in the Essen industrial area, some of them visible for 100 miles.

The number of planes which took part in the raid was to officially disclosed, but the acknowledgment that seven were lost might be taken as an indication that upwards of 140 or 150 participated.

The airmen reported they were met by heavy anti-aircraft fire and swarms of German night fighters over the target.

The raid was the 50th on Essen since the start of the war. The city has a peacetime population of about 500,000.

Allied Planes Claim Sinking of Two Subs

LONDON—(AP)— United States navy patrol planes and RAF coastal command bombers were credited officially today with the "almost certain" destruction of two Axis submarines while guarding an important Allied convoy en route across the Atlantic to Britain.

At least six other undersea raiders were damaged, either by escorting warships or planes, in attempted attacks on the convoy, the admiralty and air ministry announced.

The announcement said the convoy "did not escape without loss," but listed only one torpedo hit on a merchant vessel in its account of the crossing.

Ex-WAAC Back To Dancing

Kathryn Gregory sits at her dressing table, above, in a Hollywood night spot where she now is a member of the chorus following her discharge from the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps. She was discharged after she was found doing a strip-tease in a theater, went to Chicago to seek a job but was turned down by Chicago theater managers. Kathryn says there was much misinformation about the reasons for her discharge from the WAAC, claiming the reason was that she is under the minimum age.

Fellow Officers, Officials Pay Tribute To Chief Bell

the same sentiments were voiced by Lieut. Bruce Friday.

"Tom Bell was a fine counsellor for any officer, young or old," declared Capt. Paul Whipp.

"Chief Bell always construed the police sciences seriously and administered them fairly," declared the veteran Detective Lee Remy in voicing the thoughts of his department. "Since 1920 I had worked with Tom and when I became a detective in 1925 his help and counsel were invaluable."

"Chief Bell was a true peace officer" declared Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch. "He constantly sought the sources and causes of crimes and strove diligently to prevent their execution."

"Many persons today owe their success and their right way of living to Tom Bell who gave good counsel and advice when needed most" was the tribute of Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals.

"Tom Bell was a good soldier, a good police officer and a mighty fine citizen" declared Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston.

"Law enforcement groups," said Sheriff Frank E. Robinson, "lost one of their most esteemed officers in the death of Tom Bell. I had known him for a number of years as an exemplary citizen and a competent and efficient officer."

"The city has lost a splendid official, for which I am truly sorry" was the comment of Mayor W. J. Locke.

Throughout City Hall today there was a pall of sadness which even the memory of Chief Bell's cheery greetings and friendly smile could not erase. In the police offices the younger men reflected the sorrow of the veterans.

Reporters always found Tom Bell easy to talk to. In "off the record" conversations Tom freely furnished all the confidential details of any police situation in question. He was frank, and he was honest. Tom had the calm demeanor of the true gentleman, no bluster or "story-book toughness" but he meant what he said, and his hearer knew it.

He "died in harness" as he would have wished it to be and as chief of police of a city in which he took great pride.

English Railroaders Can't Buy Clocks To Wake 'Em Up.

LONDON —(AP)— Because their railroad company announced there would be no more "wakers up," between 300 and 300 locomotive engineers and firemen in the Nottingham district went on strike at midnight.

The trainmen complained it was impossible these days to buy alarm clocks to replace the men who have gone around to wake up locomotive crews between 11:30 p. m. and 7 a. m.

Flynn, in addition to serving as minister to Australia, will be the personal representative of the president, with the rank of ambassador in the southwest Pacific area. He has called a meeting of the Democratic national committee for next Monday to act on his resignation and choose a successor—Postmaster General Walker, who previously was national chairman, is expected by some persons to get the job.

The White House disclosed Mr. Roosevelt had sent Flynn a letter Friday informing him of his plan to nominate him as minister and of his appointment as a sort of roving ambassador.

Flynn disclosed in New York Friday that the president was going to give him a diplomatic appointment and that he was giving up the Democratic chairmanship. This was against all White House precedent, which has followed the policy of withholding announcement of nominations requiring confirmation until their submission to the senate.

By way of explanation, Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said that Flynn had sent out a call for the Democratic committee meeting Friday, then phoned the White House and talked with an official who told him erroneously the chief executive was sending up his nomination that day.

Early said Flynn would receive a minister's pay rather than that of an ambassador, and that he assumed Flynn would act in his capacity as an ambassador any time he left Australia. A minister receives $10,000 a year and an ambassador $17,500.

Johnson, former ambassador to China, asked the state department for permission to retire several years ago while he still was serving in China, Early said.

longest police service records in Mansfield's history. He was a member of the department for 34 consecutive years starting June 29, 1909. He served two years in 1905 to 1906, resigning to become a guard at the Ohio State Reformatory where he served two years before returning to the police department.

He was appointed lieutenant in August, 1918, and advanced to a captaincy in November of that year, adding to the latter grade the title of assistant chief in November, 1925. Even before his first police department service, Mr. Bell had been on duty as a Richland county deputy sheriff.

During nearly two-score years he witnessed the passing of the horse-and-buggy era and the onrush of automobiles, he watched bicycles fade from traffic lanes and witnessed their recent return, he was a vital force in crime suppression and detection up through his years.

Mr. Bell was born on the old Robert Bell homestead on the Lexington road near Mansfield Sept. 6, 1870, the son of Robert and Eleanor Cook Bell. Besides his widow, Mrs. Georgia M. Bell, he is survived by his son Robert F., two daughters, Mrs. Lillian E. Hoeppner, Mansfield, and Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, Evansville, Ind., a sister, Mrs. Flora E. Barnett, Mansfield, a grandson, Richard T. Hoeppner, Mansfield, and a niece, Mrs. R. C. Dickson who until her recent marriage lived in the Bell home.

In 1898 Mr. Bell enlisted in Co. M, Eighth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, serving in Cuba during the Spanish-American war, and had been active in veterans' organizations since 1900, holding various offices in the USWV and the VFW, his most recent activity being chairman of the Eighth Ohio reunion festivities last Labor day.

SEES RATIONING OF MANPOWER

McNutt Charges Employes Are Hoarding Manpower.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower commission today told a press conference that manpower soon must be rationed to correct unbalanced conditions in labor-shortage areas.

He said that this must be done to bring an end to hoarding of workers by employers of skilled labor in anticipation of contracts for increased production.

"There's been more of it (hoarding) than I like," McNutt said. "It's a very human trait."

McNutt said that the plan to ration skilled laborers among war industries in shortage areas was being carefully worked out.

REVEALS PINCH IN DELIVERIES

Steel Bars 35 Days Behind Order Date, Says Magazine In Weekly Review.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Noting that "steel bars, both carbon and alloy, continue the tightest spot in the matter of delivery," the magazine Steel said today some items take as long as 35 weeks.

The squeeze in steel bars is true "especially in large diameters and large flats. While small bars with high priority can be bought for six weeks' delivery, large sections extend well into the second quarter. Cold-drawn bars are available in three to four months and alloy bars as far ahead as 35 weeks.

"Sheet mills are receiving cancellations of tonnage on books, especially in lighter gages, as consumers find delivery unlikely in the face of preponderant demand for heavier gages rolled on continuous mills. Deliveries on hot-rolled sheets are about 60 days, with cold-rolled slightly longer and galvanized up to three months."

National ingot production was unchanged last week at 97½ per cent of estimated capacity, the previous week's rate being revised because of the Ohio river flood. By districts, Pittsburgh climbed 2½ points to 98½ per cent, Cleveland ½ to 93 and Detroit 3 to 92, while Cincinnati lost 15 points to 73 per cent because of high water. Wheeling and Youngstown were unchanged at 70 and 97, respectively.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

If you want to see Jeanette MacDonald go into a routine as funny as she ever did in the most sparkling Lubitsch comedy, ask her to tell you what happened to her on Thanksgiving day when she decided to look for adventure without benefit of script writer, director or camera.

Kilgallen

She had been playing concerts out of town during the days preceding the holidays, and hadn't expected to be back in New York in time to share a turkey with any of her friends, so she had declined all invitations to parties and family dinners. But she finished her concertizing and bondselling chores earlier than she'd anticipated, and Thanksgiving morning found her in New York, alone in her suite in the Sherry Netherlands.

This thought of calling some of her friends who'd said "Now if you are in town, be sure and let us know," but she decided not to. She was tired, so she took a short nap, and when she awoke, and looked around at the four walls of the hotel bedroom, she admits she began to feel pretty sorry for herself. Here I am all alone on Thanksgiving, everyone else has a home to go to, my husband is fighting on some foreign front—I don't even know where—isn't it an awful sort of thing.

Perhaps it was thinking of Gene, somewhere in some strange place that gave her the Big Idea. There must be many a lonely soldier boy, or sailor boy, right here in New York this Thanksgiving day. Someone far away from home, with no place to go—just like Jeanette.

She would share her Thanksgiving with him.

Jeanette hopped out of bed, no longer sad but indeed quite gay, and arrayed herself in her most becoming furbelows. ("I think," she says now, "I did look nice.")

On Broadway at one of the streets in the 40's, she was waiting for the light to change when she noticed standing beside her in the crowd an American sailor—young, clean-cut, nice-looking, but a little pale, she thought, and definitely on the homeless side. Jeanette plunged right in.

"Young man," she began brightly, giving him a light tap on the sleeve, "have you had your Thanksgiving dinner?"

The gob gave her a quick are-you-kidding-look. "Lady," he said, "I had three." And with that he dashed across the street, not waiting for the light to go green.

Jeanette suddenly felt frightened by the Broadway crowds. Maybe this wasn't quite the right place for picking up a lonely sailor. Maybe if they were on Broadway, that meant they were going to meet a girl or take in a movie or go bowling. But Central Park—now there is a place for people who have no place to go.

Jeanette walked up to Central Park. There she saw a soldier on a bench. A nice boy, anyone could tell that. Private first class. Just sitting there, staring into space.

Jeanette went over to the bench and sat down beside him.

"It's not a very nice day," she trilled. "Is it?"

The private handed her a stony glance. "I've seen lots worse," he said. "What's the matter with it?"

Whereupon he got up and walked hurriedly away.

Jeanette went back to the Sherry Netherlands and ate milk toast in bed.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Mr. Irving Pichel, the directing man, was describing his week-end.

"I got the family ironing done—two weeks' ironing," he said.

It wasn't until later, the domestic front being what it is, that Mr. Pichel's ironing struck me as funny, not to say "ironic." At the time I simply inquired about his technique, his equipment, his speed. Mr. Pichel, a good family man, seemed to think he had done a good job. He was ready to apply the touch that made "The Pied Piper" and "Life Begins at 8:30" and is currently soothing "The Moon Is Down," to the family dry wash again.

Hollywood is a place that used to have a servant problem. But the problem is no more. Along with the servants who are making airplanes or building ships or keeping those caissons rolling along.

Dorris Bowdon, leading lady of "The Moon Is Down," had to be excused from the set one day to go home and take care of the nursery, whence the guardians had fled.

Applicants for domestic jobs of course, are interviewing the stars. Glenda Farrell tells of wooing one applicant with visions of an easy life. "You'll find the work very easy," she promised. "I'm in Hollywood for studio and war work a great deal and my husband (Major Henry Ross) is at his army post—so we have little time for entertaining. Why, there'll be days when you won't even have to prepare a meal!"

"Then I wouldn't be interested, ma'am," said the prospective queen. "Sounds lonesome."

Jane Wyatt, herself a domestic soul, was baking a cake when a prospect answered her help-wanted ad. Jane was wearing wool socks sans shoes—an old Danish custom—to keep the cake from falling. Answering the doorbell, she got the critical once-over. "Land's sakes," said the trimly attired applicant. "If Miss Wyatt lets her help go 'round the house this way, it's not the kind of place I'm used to."

This is the same town where once a casual guest in a movie home had to plow past acres of servants before greeting his host. It's the same town where the guest, if he had a bit of auy persiflage to toss about, had to toss it between the shoulders of the second man and the third maid, both of them hovering with trays loaded with meaty hors d'oeuvres and tinkling glasses. It's the town where — ah! sweet nostalgia — Greta Garbo once complained because the gardener came every day.

But you'll have to excuse me now. I've got to get down and help with the washing. I'm thinking of asking Mr. Irving Pichel, of the ironing prowess, to spend a week-end with us.

18,000 Miners Defy U. S., Stay On Strike

THREE TRAPPED IN MINE SHAFT BY EXPLOSION

Fate of Miners In Doubt, Says Patrol; Rescue Squad on Job of Finding Men.

(By Associated Press)

CAMBRIDGE—The state highway patrol reported today three miners were trapped by an explosion in the Belle Valley Mining company's workings 15 miles south of here.

The patrol said it was not known whether the three "were dead or alive."

Three other miners in the shaft when the blast occurred shortly before midnight, escaped, the patrol said. The "exact location where the others were trapped is unknown," patrolmen added, but it was thought they were about 3,000 feet from the mine's mouth.

A rescue squad from here was called to the scene and immediately began efforts to extricate the trio, identified by the patrol as James Mackey, Mike Zeleznik and Lester Berry, all of nearby Belle Valley.

Patrolmen said only six men were working in the diggings at the time.

John Wukeligh and Floyd Roeaski of Belle Valley, and Arthur Bridgeman of Sarahsville, escaped uninjured following the blast, which occurred last night.

An explosion in the mine in 1913 killed 14 miners.

Marcus Kerr, chief of Ohio's division of mines, directing rescue operations at the mine, said 17 state and federal mining engineers joined in the efforts, but were "hampered in their attempts to enter the shaft because of gas fumes."

Kerr said the cause of the blast could not be determined at once, but added that it "presumably was a gas explosion."

He described the mine as "an ordinary-sized diggings," employing about 75 men.

The explosion halted all production, Kerr said.

Kerr notified the state industrial relations department that fire probably had broken out inside the mine. J. C. Wilson, oil and gas well inspector, was en route from Columbus with a carbon monoxide gas detector, to determine whether fumes emanating from the shaft were poisonous.

LACK OF LIQUOR LAID TO STATE

Spokesman for Permit-Holders Raps Way Ohio Handles Nation's Distillers.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — The state was blamed today for a liquor "shortage" which, a spokesman for permit holders declared, threatens to force some taverns out of business within six months.

Barney Rubenstein, president of the Buckeye Liquor Dealers association, asserted Ohio and Pennsylvania were the only states experiencing a "shortage" and attributed this to the state's treatment of distillers.

"We should tell the state to sell liquor or get out of the business," he told 250 permit holders yesterday at a meeting called to consider the problem. "If it can't supply us, it should let us go direct to the distillers."

Rubenstein said numerous holders of permits to sell liquor by the glass had been restricted by the state to two quarts a day.

He denied the liquor control board's claim that there is an ample supply in retail stores, contending both the supply and variety are inadequate.

Asserting "the drys are on the march in Ohio," he said county and state-wide midnight closing measures soon would go before state legislators, continuing.

"But they won't vote you out this time. They'll just put you out of business."

The dealers named a committee to seek a conference with Gov. John W. Bricker and liquor department heads.

INFLUENCE OF TOTAL WAR ON LITERATURE, BOOK FAIR THEME

Mansfield's third annual Book Fair now under way at the Public Library emphasizes how total war has influenced literature.

Scores of books which have come out of the war the past year are among the 300 volumes on special exhibit while many others of earlier publication also deal with some phase of the conflict.

A fair-sized crowd attended the opening yesterday and the fair will continue throughout the week from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. excepting Sunday when hours from 1:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m. will be observed. There is no admission.

The event will be highlighted Friday night by the appearance of Dr. Pitman B. Potter, head of the department of political science at Oberlin college. He will speak at 8:15 p. m. in the library's Larwill room on the subject, "Planning a New World." Presented under the auspices of the library Memorial board the lecture is free to the public.

Dedicated to the United Nations, the fair this year not only acquaints the visitor with America's allies through the printed page but also by a display of colorful maps and posters bearing pictures of the different countries and their people throughout the world. Art objects loaned by local residents also enhance the exhibit.

Mansfield garden clubs have added to the pictorial side of the fair by a series of decorative and telling arrangements. American tanks, guns, ships and planes in miniature are shown beneath the shadow of a winged victory in the United States exhibit. Toy soldiers guard the tiny replicas of American possessions except for the case of the Philippines where a rat with Hirohito's face symbolizes the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Enemy countries are not overlooked and a display of books, most of them written by men who have had first hand experience with the Axis including Ambassador Grey, Frederick Oeschner of the United Press, and others is supplemented by a garden club reproduction of a recent cartoon showing Uncle Sam about to whack down a limb to which Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito are clinging.

A Richland county author, Louis Bromfield, is represented in the exhibit of occupied countries by his novel, "Until the Day Breaks," the story of an American girl dancer in Paris at the time of Germany's occupation.

Both the John Sherman room and the Garden Center on the library's second floor supplements the fair that occupies the mezzanine. Art objects are displayed in the Sherman room while the Garden Center devotes its space to a Victory garden and other subjects.

Miss Lois MacKellar, city librarian, superintended the fair to which the entire staff lent its efforts. Mrs. Lois Pennell, Newman school librarian, made the posters and art backgrounds and Miss Virginia Chew was responsible for the art collection.

"Dear, before you go to work, will you weld on a button for me?"

A Mansfield woman is having a lot of fun relating an experience she had while making a holiday visit to an adjoining state. The train coaches were crowded and there was much milling around on the part of the passengers. When she decided to go to the dining car she noticed a young soldier, bearing a heavy pack over one shoulder, following her down the aisle. She decided it was only courtesy to open the door for him and let him pass and then much to her surprise she found herself holding the door not only for one soldier but for about 25 of his buddies all bearing similar packs. The boys all smiled and thanked her profusely and everybody in the coach had a good chuckle, including the Mansfielder, over the incident.

Four-year-old Donald Palm, Mansfield R. D. 4, has the makings of a shrewd business man. Not only did he save pennies and nickles to buy the tag for his dog, but approached the sales stand in the corridor of the courthouse alone Saturday to make the purchase. He told his name and address, the name of his brown-and-white dog, and presented his box of pennies in payment. County Dog Warden Bill Miller, who was in charge at the time, delayed counting the coin while calling attention of fellow courthouse workers to the small customer, but young Palm was in no mood to be trifled with. Approaching Miller, who had walked down the hall with his box of coins, he said: "Mister, there's more money in that box than the license will cost." There was. He got 60 cents back, and promptly!

NEW MINING THREAT RISES ON PAY BOOST

7,000 In Seven Collieries of Pennsylvania Heed Federal Warning, Resume Work.

(By United Press)

WILKES-BARRE, Pa.—Eighteen thousand anthracite miners continued their strike today, defying government demands to return to work pending adjustment of their grievances and to end a 13-day work stoppage that has caused serious coal heating shortages along the eastern seaboard.

Only seven collieries representing 7,000 miners, voted last night to return to work today and continue on their jobs for one week, while negotiators attempted settlement of the dispute which involved increased union dues. Approximately 3,000 others voted to stay out, thus ignoring demands of Solid Fuels Coordinator Harold L. Ickes, who termed the work-stoppages "intolerable."

Fifteen thousand others in 12 collieries did not vote, despite the appearance in the hard-coal fields of war department representatives and federal and state mediators.

Meanwhile, a new threat to a settlement developed when the tri-district general mine committee, at a meeting in Hazelton, indicated it would take a strike vote next Friday unless mine operators agree to reopen contracts and grant miners a $2 a day wage increase. The committee represents 20,000 miners other than those now on strike.

This committee is not recognized by John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America.

The tri-state committee, another group which has UMW recognition, appointed a committee of 15 to meet with the committee of 12, which will confer in New York tonight. The committee of 12 is a group of operators and union officials representing the anthracite industry.

Spokesmen for the 12 striking collieries said the paramount issue is the increase of monthly union dues from $1 to $1.50. They said that if their grievance was not settled by tomorrow night, other locals would probably join them.

Ship Oleo, Keep Butter At Home, La Follette Urges

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Butter for the home folks and oleomargarine for those abroad is the aim of Senator La Follette (Prog-Wis.)

In a letter to Secretary Wickard, made public today, the senator said that while an important part of the war effort was in the feeding of the Allies, "I strongly urge you to take the necessary action to preserve our butter supplies for our own armed forces and domestic consumption."

Secretary Wickard recently directed creameries to reserve 30 per cent of their butter production for war purposes.

LaFollette said use of butter substitutes "has been consistently discouraged as a matter of public policy," and "the fruits of all those past efforts will be threatened with complete destruction, if now, in a period of shortage, we send our butter abroad and force our own people to use butter substitutes."

for the armed services and war production. This number can be obtained by transferring from less essential work, and by drawing into the working force people who have not recently sought employment. Vigorous action is required to mobilize and train our reserve of women and young people, to accelerate the transfer of workers to essential industries, and to reduce harmful turnover and migration of workers in essential industries."

The armed services alone, he said, will need 9,700,000 men by the end of this year, and the budget reflected arms to equip all of them.

In his list of things that civilians will or will not have, however, the president also made the statement that money is what they will have most in the next year. He calculated the national income at $135,000,000,000 this fiscal year, and $145,000,000,000 next year—compared with about $70,000,000,000 before Pearl Harbor and $40,000,000,000 at the depths of the depression

Explaining that the extra taxes and savings he proposed were also designed to siphon off some of this spare purchasing power, he noted, "under war conditions a rise in profits, wages, and farm incomes unfortunately does not increase the supply of goods for civilians; it merely invites the bidding up of prices of scarce commodities.

He said families in the lower third bracket of income will have this year average earnings of $1,335, instead of $780, which was the 1935-36 average.

Outside of his "war expenditures," the president said the budget called for $9,000,000,000 of other costs, usually called "non-war," but he said these included $3,000,000,000 interest on the public debt, and $879,360,000 for the veterans administration

He noted that the Work Projects administration has been ordered abolished, public works curtailed and asserted that other normal governmental activities have been cut practically to the bedrock of activities required by existing laws. He said further cuts could not be made unless congress repealed laws which called for these activities.

The actual total of treasury expenditures in the next year, Mr. Roosevelt added, will be $104,128,924,923, but to this should be added $4,774,123,000 of expenditures to be made outside the treasury by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, Commodity Credit corporation, and other corporations.

Although previously expressing a wish to remain in federal service Bates said also he would act in the best way to protect his 19 years of service in the police department.

Chief Bates began a series of conferences this morning with various members of the department. He declined to discuss what effect the death yesterday of Thomas M. Bell, who served as chief during his absence, would have on his decision.

Asked directly whether or not he intended to request another leave of absence, he answered "I have no statement to make at this time."

Meanwhile in Cleveland this morning Lee V. Boardman, chief special agent of the FBI, said Bates is not on resignation status "and his resignation is not contemplated, indicating that a second year's leave application will be submitted to Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff before Thursday.

turn to their own advantage the Mareth defense line which the French built along the Tripolitanian border.

"The question is," one Allied officer remarked, "which way are they going to turn it? If they turn it against the Eighth army we can attack them from the rear. If they turn it against us the Eighth army will smash them."

Before Rommel can reach the Mareth line, however, his forces must retreat some 300 miles from their present easternmost positions in Libya. That the Allied air forces in both Tunisia and Libya are ready to give him a bad mauling along the way has already been demonstrated.

Ground action, in northern Tunisia, meanwhile, remained virtually stalemated.

Developments behind the front were marked by the arrival of Vice Admiral William Glassford, jr., in Algiers for conferences with Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, presumably bearing on Dakar.

Russians Roll On, Take 13 More Towns

(By Associated Press)

The Russians announced today the recapture of 13 more towns among the Rostov-Baku railway through the Caucasus as they closed in tighter around the Georgievsk rail junction where the Nazis had been rolled back some 75 miles from Mozdok, gateway to the Grozny oilfields.

The German defenses in the Caucasus apparently were crumbling fast, and although desperation stiffened the Nazi stand in the lower Don, 60 miles from Rostov, and on the central front west of Velikie Luki, there was no sign that the Russian drive had bogged down.

With Germany's air power spread even thinner by the broadening scope of Allied aerial offensives, the Russians, once badly out-numbered in the air, reported a three-to-one ratio of victories last week—313 enemy planes destroyed against a loss of 93 Soviet aircraft.

Essen Devastated By RAF Block-Busters

LONDON—(AP)—Essen, site of the Great Krupp armament works, lay smoking today under the effects of a devastating bombardment by the RAF, which unloaded a great weight of bombs—including two-ton "blockbusters" — on the city Saturday night in the fifth raid of the Ruhr in seven nights.

Pilots returning from the assault, which was carried out under excellent weather conditions, said they had left vast fires raging in the Essen industrial area, some of them visible for 100 miles.

The number of planes which took part in the raid was to officially disclosed, but the acknowledgment that seven were lost might be taken as an indication that upwards of 140 or 150 participated.

The airmen reported they were met by heavy anti-aircraft fire and swarms of German night fighters over the target.

The raid was the 50th on Essen since the start of the war. The city has a peacetime population of about 500,000

Allied Planes Claim Sinking of Two Subs

LONDON—(AP)— United States navy patrol planes and RAF coastal command bombers were credited officially today with the "almost certain" destruction of two Axis submarines while guarding an important Allied convoy en route across the Atlantic to Britain.

At least six other undersea raiders were damaged, either by escorting warships or planes, in attempted attacks on the convoy, the admiralty and air ministry announced.

The announcement said the convoy "did not escape without loss," but listed only one torpedo hit on a merchant vessel in its account of the crossing.

Fellow Officers, Officials Pay Tribute To Chief Bell

the same sentiments were voiced by Lieut. Bruce Friday

"Tom Bell was a fine counsellor for any officer, young or old," declared Capt. Paul Whipp.

"Chief Bell always construed the police sciences seriously and administered them fairly," declared the veteran Detective Lee Remy in voicing the thoughts of his department. "Since 1920 I had worked with Tom and when I became a detective in 1925 his help and counsel were invaluable."

"Chief Bell was a true peace officer" declared Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch. "He constantly sought the sources and causes of crimes and strove diligently to prevent their execution."

"Many persons today owe their success and their right way of living to Tom Bell who gave good counsel and advice when needed most" was the tribute of Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals.

"Tom Bell was a good soldier, a good police officer and a mighty fine citizen" declared Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston.

"Law enforcement groups," said Sheriff Frank E. Robinson, "lost one of their most esteemed officers in the death of Tom Bell. I had known him for a number of years as an exemplary citizen and a competent and efficient officer."

"The city has lost a splendid official, for which I am truly sorry" was the comment of Mayor W. J Locke.

Throughout City Hall today there was a pall of sadness which even the memory of Chief Bell's cheery greetings and friendly smile could not erase. In the police offices the younger men reflected the sorrow of the veterans.

Reporters always found Tom Bell easy to talk to. In "off the record" conversations Tom freely furnished all the confidential details of any police situation in question. He was frank, and he was honest. Tom had the calm demeanor of the true gentleman, no bluster or "story-book toughness" but he meant what he said, and his hearer knew it.

He "died in harness" as he would have wished it to be and as chief of police of a city in which he took great pride.

The trainmen complained it was impossible these days to buy alarm clocks to replace the men who have gone around to wake up locomotive crews between 11.30 p. m. and 7 a. m.

Flynn, in addition to serving as minister to Australia, will be the personal representative of the president, with the rank of ambassador in the southwest Pacific area. He has called a meeting of the Democratic national committee for next Monday to act on his resignation and choose a successor—Postmaster General Walker, who previously was national chairman, is expected by some persons to get the job.

The White House disclosed Mr. Roosevelt had sent Flynn a letter Friday informing him of his plan to nominate him as minister and of his appointment as a sort of roving ambassador.

Flynn disclosed in New York Friday that the president was going to give him a diplomatic appointment and that he was giving up the Democratic chairmanship. This was against all White House precedent, which has followed the policy of withholding announcement of nominations requiring confirmation until their submission to the senate.

By way of explanation, Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said that Flynn had sent out a call for the Democratic committee meeting Friday, then phoned the White House and talked with an official who told him erroneously the chief executive was sending up his nomination that day.

Early said Flynn would receive a minister's pay rather than that of an ambassador, and that he assumed Flynn would act in his capacity as an ambassador any time he left Australia. A minister receives $10,000 a year and an ambassador $17,500.

Johnson, former ambassador to China, asked the state department for permission to retire several years ago while he still was serving in China, Early said.

longest police service records in Mansfield's history. He was a member of the department for 34 consecutive years starting June 29, 1909. He served two years in 1905 to 1906, resigning to become a guard at the Ohio State Reformatory where he served two years before returning to the police department.

He was appointed lieutenant in August, 1918, and advanced to a captaincy in November of that year, adding to the latter grade the title of assistant chief in November, 1925. Even before his first police department service, Mr. Bell had been on duty as a Richland county deputy sheriff.

During nearly two-score years he witnessed the passing of the horse-and-buggy era and the onrush of automobiles, he watched bicycles fade from traffic lanes and witnessed their recent return, he was a vital force in crime suppression and detection up through his years.

Mr. Bell was born on the old Robert Bell homestead on the Lexington road near Mansfield Sept. 6, 1870, the son of Robert and Eleanor Cook Bell. Besides his widow, Mrs. Georgia M. Bell, he is survived by his son Robert F, two daughters, Mrs. Lillian E. Hoeppner, Mansfield, and Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, Evansville, Ind., a sister, Mrs. Flora E. Barnett, Mansfield, a grandson, Richard T. Hoeppner, Mansfield, and a niece, Mrs. R. C Dickson who until her recent marriage lived in the Bell home.

In 1898 Mr. Bell enlisted in Co. M, Eighth Ohio Volunteer Infantry, serving in Cuba during the Spanish-American war, and had been active in veterans' organizations since 1900, holding various offices in the USWV and the VFW, his most recent activity being chairman of the Eighth Ohio reunion festivities last Labor day.

SEES RATIONING OF MANPOWER

McNutt Charges Employes Are Hoarding Manpower.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower commission today told a press conference that manpower soon must be rationed to correct unbalanced conditions in labor-shortage areas.

He said that this must be done to bring an end to hoarding of workers by employers of skilled labor in anticipation of contracts for increased production.

"There's been more of it (hoarding) than I like," McNutt said. "It's a very human trait."

McNutt said that the plan to ration skilled laborers among war industries in shortage areas was being carefully worked out.

REVEALS PINCH IN DELIVERIES

Steel Bars 35 Days Behind Order Date, Says Magazine In Weekly Review.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Noting that "steel bars, both carbon and alloy, continue the tightest spot in the matter of delivery," the magazine Steel said today some items take as long as 35 weeks.

The squeeze in steel bars is true "especially in large diameters and large flats. While small bars with high priority can be bought for six weeks' delivery, large sections extend well into the second quarter. Cold-drawn bars are available in three to four months and alloy bars as far ahead as 35 weeks.

"Sheet mills are receiving cancellations of tonnage on books, especially in lighter gages, as consumers find delivery unlikely in the face of preponderant demand for heavier gages rolled on continuous mills. Deliveries on hot-rolled sheets are about 60 days, with cold-rolled slightly longer and galvanized up to three months."

National ingot production was unchanged last week at 97½ per cent of estimated capacity, the previous week's rate being revised because of the Ohio river flood. By districts, Pittsburgh climbed 2½ points to 98½ per cent. Cleveland ½ to 93 and Detroit 3 to 92, while Cincinnati lost 15 points to 73 per cent because of high water. Wheeling and Youngstown were unchanged at 70 and 97, respectively.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, JANUARY 11 1943.

The war for freedom will not have been won when the fear of Nazi and Japanese domination has been destroyed. The era of freedom will be achieved only as human welfare and social security become the main concern of men and nations.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Ohio's Time Problem Up Again

BEFORE taking action to change Ohio from Eastern to Central Standard time, so as to set clocks back an hour and still conform to the federal government's war-time order, the state legislature has decided to go into the matter more fully than has yet been done.

The whole idea is based on the theory that electric current is saved by advancing the time one hour, but this does not seem to be the experience in Ohio, which is in the western part of the Eastern time zone and therefore, under the present arrangement, goes well into the middle of the forenoon, during the winter months, before the sun rises.

Farm and school groups have been the principal agitators for adoption of Central time in Ohio, and their position can be readily understood, but in this, as with other wartime measures, the main thing is how Ohio can best co-operate in the national war effort and if there are sound reasons why the present time schedule should be continued—as will be ascertained during the inquiry now in progress—the time should be left as it is until the end of the war.

Ohio should not place itself in the position of seeming to balk against wartime regulations designed for the national welfare—if those regulations are thoughtfully decided upon by competent persons and fairly administered.

Articles By Herbert Hoover

WHATEVER individual views may be held about Herbert Hoover as a former president who had the misfortune to serve during a period of national and world depression, a fair estimate places him among really great Americans. What he has to say, as a keen and studious observer of present world events, merits careful reading and thoughtful consideration by everyone who is looking toward victory for the United Nations and wondering how civilians can help in winning the war.

Mr. Hoover has written for the Associated Press a series of six articles on "The Home Fronts and Global Strategy," the first of which appears on this page today.

Read it, also the others that will follow from day to day. Consider the writer as a competent engineer; a world traveler; relief administrator for Europe during the first World war; secretary of commerce in the Harding and Coolidge administrations, and former president of the United States. You'll be interested in what he says—and will also find many things about which you will think.

Delay In Collecting Ashes

AFTER conveniences have been enjoyed for awhile they have a habit of being taken for granted—as, for instance, the city's practice of removing ashes from basements, as a part of the garbage collection service, for which a nominal charge is made.

"Taking out the ashes" was a voluntarily added accommodation when revenue from garbage collection made this possible and when help and equipment was adequate for this extra work.

The extent to which this ashes-removal service has been taken advantage of in some instances has tended to discourage the practice of free collection of unlimited quantities of ashes, but the service has been continued, with an effort to make collections every six weeks over a six months period from December 1 to June 1.

Now, however, shortage of motor equipment and men is making the task more than ordinarily difficult and in at least a few instances there have been delays in reaching some residential sections of the city for removal of ashes. This has caused considerable annoyance and a number of complaints—but as long as everything possible is being done to continue this free service—instead of cutting it off—it seems that a little patience is in order.

And, by the way, ashes are supposed to be placed in metal containers of a size that a man can conveniently carry—not dumped on the basement floor to be shoveled up by the collectors, nor put in paper cartons, as has sometimes been done.

Scanty Attire Endangers Health

THE WARNING given yesterday by Dr. W. B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, against scanty attire for school children, is timely and worthy of attention by parents interested in the health of their children.

Eccentricity in dress, as sometimes affected by "odd" persons, is too likely to be imitated by others who are not physically constituted to follow such leads—as in the instance of some men going without hats all through the year because a few exceptionally robust fellows started the vogue long ago and seemed to suffer no bad effects.

The practice of school children and young women going stockingless through the winter, in such climate as is common to Ohio, is dangerous from a health standpoint—although one out of a hundred might have built up sufficient resistance to avoid illness.

Dr. Wild mentions a flock of ailments, aside from "common colds," that can develop from lack of seasonable clothing, with at least the possibility of bringing on a heart weakness that might extend through life.

His suggestion that "common sense" should dictate the kind of clothing to be worn at various seasons, either by children or adults, appears to offer the remedy—although this is a prescription that can't be filled at the drug store.

'Unlucky 13' for Ruffing

RED RUFFING is in the army. This is a real sacrifice for the burly ex-miner who for 13 years has been the mainstay of the New York Yankees' pitching staff. He has won 258 victories and, except for his old rival, Ted Lyons of the Chicago White Sox, had the best chance of any big leaguer to join the select rank of hurlers who have won 300 victories. Three more years would do it, but Ruffing is not going to have these three years. He is 38 now, and his service in the armed forces will probably last long enough to end his major league career.

There have been 12 pitchers who have won 200 games Ruffing would have been the 13th. In his case 13 is definitely an unlucky number.

China, Shaken By War Ravages, Looks to Vast Postwar Strides

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

CHUNGKING—China's whole economic structure is being badly shaken by the ravages of war and this, of course, is reflected not only in the war effort but in the lives of the people.

The cost of living has zoomed until in some categories it is fantastic. Along with this there is inflation which has sent Chinese money tumbling. The government has pegged the Chinese dollar at about one-seventh of its normal value, making it worth approximately five cents in American money.

Industries throughout the country are handicapped or hamstrung. The lack of raw materials and replacements for machinery are among the biggest obstacles.

All this naturally is inextricably linked with China's lack of physical communications with the outside world. Her economic status is dependent in a major degree on the supplies she receives from abroad, and as I have pointed out in previous articles her lifeline is that slender thread of air transport which is being kept open between India and Chungking by Uncle Sam's airmen.

Should that tenuous line be depleted it would represent tragedy for China. It would strike both at the war effort and the life of the people.

Conversely any increase in the supplies now being received over the skyline would be a godsend. China's well being increases or decreases in direct ratio to this help.

THIS background is by way of preface to the statement given me by China's great statesman, T. V. Soong, who has served his country in many capacities and is now foreign minister. Soong not only is a statesman but a banker, and you know him also as China's lease-lend expert who, until recently was in Washington in connection with this work. He is, by the way, a graduate of Harvard and a man of wide education and culture.

I gave you just a word of Soong's statement in yesterday's dispatch and that was that 100 more transport planes on the airline from India to China would vastly improve China's position. What this financial and economic expert said was that this increase in planes would "transpose the economic picture."

Now, Soong not only is an expert but one of his characteristics is that he is cautious in his language. So when he says that 100 more transport planes would "transpose the economic picture" in this hard-pressed country we must recognize that he regards this transaction as of great importance.

It is doubly significant that his suggestion is quite outside the circle of military requests which China has made. Soong isn't in this instance asking for warplanes or tanks or arms of any sort. He wants to increase the essential supplies which act not only as a blood transfusion to Chinese industry but mean much to public morale.

Some things are needed for this brave and long suffering public. However, the bulk of supplies would be required for military purposes and industries. It is amazing how many operations both in manufacturing plants and on the battlefield can be held up by the lack of some comparatively small gadgets which must come from the outside world on the wings of Uncle Sam's transports.

A dozen planes might conceivably carry what is needed to pave the way for the capture of an important enemy position or to set all the wheels of a great factory running.

HAVING got a closer view of China's position I must say that if I had 100 transport planes to dispose of I would turn them over to the skyline express as fast as I could. I'd feel that any delay might multiply the vast difficulties which already exist.

It would seem clear to me also that such a gesture would tend to alleviate the feeling here that China is being left out in the cold by her Allies. The corollary is that the morale of the general public and the army would receive a lift.

Soong gave me his views on many other subjects, most of which were confidential but highly illuminating to one trying to reach the bottom of the situation in China. However, there were one of two outstanding points which may be mentioned.

For instance the foreign minister feels that China will be unassailable after the post-war reconstruction.

"I can see the possibility of vast strides," he said. "There will be a great increase in our railways. We shall be going forward by leaps and bounds agriculturally and industrially. It will be possible to raise the national income two or three times in 10 years."

"We are looking forward," he added, "to collaboration with America. We know she is our friend."

Why Is a Boaster?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I DESPISE BOASTERS. I think they're a pest and a bore. I think that boasting is just about the most stupid and vulgar act which the human animal can commit and I'm sure that no thoroughly civilized, mature person would dream of boasting. And yet—

I'M ALWAYS BOASTING MYSELF!

I'm always talking about the wonderful things I've done—the interesting people I've met—the flattering remarks they've made to me. Half of it isn't true. And nobody believes that it is true. And I know that nobody believes it! Yet on I go, shouting my own praises, trying to make myself look like a million dollars and the other fellow like 30 cents.

Am I enjoying myself while I do this?

Indeed I'm not!

I'M LOATHING MYSELF.

I sit there and listen to my own mouth making a fool of itself—making me common and ridiculous—making people laugh at me and despise me. I see the contempt in their eyes and I shudder and hate myself and long to crawl through the crack in the floor.

But do I stop boasting?

No—I boast louder than ever!

Why? I know perfectly well why, though the reason may surprise you. I boast—I pretend to be brave and wise and wonderful and well-beloved—BECAUSE I KNOW I'M NOT!

I laugh and smirk and tell the fine things people have said about me because, in my secret heart, I'm frightened and tired and discouraged and terribly lonely. BUT I DON'T WANT ANYONE TO KNOW IT.

There's a queer sick pride in me that fights against anyone discovering my real condition. I'm like a hurt animal hiding in a hole. My boasting is nothing but a great, hollow, echoing hole in which I hide my hurt.

If I were really happy—if I were really sure of myself—I wouldn't boast . . I would go quietly, simply on my way, forgetting myself, rejoicing in the world about me. But the hurt and weakness won't let me forget. Always they goad me into pretending I'm the thing I'm not.

How clearly I see all this about myself. How clearly I see the pitiful truth about my own boasting. AND YET HOW RARELY I SEE THE TRUTH ABOUT THE OTHER FELLOW'S BOASTING!

In spite of my own loud boasting, nothing gets my goat like a boaster. When I hear one I say—

"What a conceited ass! What a fathead! Why can't he see that he's making a fool of himself? Does he think for a minute that people believe his idiotic statements? Can't he see how bored and disgusted they are? Why in heck doesn't he get wise to himself?

That's what I say when I hear a boaster.

And then the minute he stops for breath, I grab the floor and start boasting myself!

Herbert Hoover Writes:

War Can Be Either Won or Lost By Home Front's 'Staying Power'

—By HERBERT HOOVER

SO IMPORTANT is the home front of the enemy in its bearing on our military strategy that by its correct or incorrect appraisal the lives of hundreds of thousands of American boys might be saved or lost. And healthy home fronts in the United Nations are essential to win the war.

The strategy in global war is not solely a military question. In total war between great nations, the home front is, in many ways, as important as the military front. Wars can be lost or won on the home front. Germany lost the last war by exhaustion and collapse of the home front which weakened her army. France would have collapsed on the home front in the third year of that war had it not been for American support to the civilian population.

There have been explosions of Western civilization into world wars before but total war was new in 1914. Great nations in total war, in addition to military forces, now pit against each other their total resources, the total emotions, the skill, the sacrifice, the work of every adult civilian.

It becomes a contest of strength, spirit and endurance of civilians against civilians, as well as between armies and navies. Today the only limitation on the size of the military forces is the number of men who can be spared from the two jobs of producing arms and supplies for the military front and keeping the civilian population alive.

Civilians Fight Too.

And total war is not alone combat between armed men. It is also war between armed men and civilians. Since the last total war the improved airplane and submarine have immensely increased the power of attack upon civil populations and their war efforts. The improved submarine through its intensified sinking of ships increases the power of blockade; the plane works to relieve and intensify it.

The improved plane and the improved tank have increased the power of land offensive and made the blitz possible. On the other hand, the airplane has immensely increased the power of defense against invasion by sea, making it practically impregnable if the sea is wide enough or there are land-based planes enough. And the radio has increased the power of propaganda.

The United Nations have now closed iron rings around the European and the Asiatic Axis. But both of them still have tremendous powers of defense through their powerful armies with interior lines of communication and their air and submarine protection from overseas' invasion. Japan has, in addition, great naval strength.

With the occupation by United Nations of bases in North Africa and the Pacific, with the growth of our naval, air and ground strength, the ring around them grows closer and closer. But for some time to come the war is obviously a war of aggressive attrition and the creation of conditions favorable for major combat blows. That attrition is just as vital on the home front as on the military front. And our powers of attrition and combat are increasing more rapidly than the Axis.

Decline Sets In.

This process of wearing down the strength of their home fronts is not solely a matter of military attrition, through blockade, sinking of ships, or air attacks or even through propaganda. There are implacable internal forces which contribute.

Experience both in the last war and in this war shows that after a certain period steady economic degeneration sets in on the home fronts of all nations engaged in total war.

In the earlier years the military strength of each nation grows steadily. Production of arms increases. But at some stage, probably about two years, the military strength reaches is maximum size and from there on it diminishes. Likewise, at some point, industrial production reaches its zenith. Even more rapidly than armies waste away after their zenith, the industrial machinery, the resources and the productive capacity of the civilian population wear down.

On the home front of all nations, shortages in food and other consumption goods grow progressively due to diversion of manpower. Armed men consume more than when they were civilians. The people must work longer and longer hours at harder and heavier labor. Movement is restricted. Rationing, price and wage restrictions are inevitable. Regimentation becomes steadily more onerous and economic dictatorship grows increasingly as war goes on.

On the spiritual side grief stretches into every family; emotions become more fragile and intolerant, criticism, freedom of speech becomes more and more frozen.

All these forces are multiplied in civilians by terror of attack from the air and destruction of their industries.

In the end the multiplication of civilian hardships — in some degree universal to all nations—becomes a race between them toward exhaustion. The Germans are in the fourth year of war. We have had one year.

And in this race of exhaustion, the home front of the greatest staying power, of the greatest resources, of the greatest will to endure the fight is a vast support to the military arm. The weak home front becomes a disintegrating liability to its military arm. That was the case of the Allies versus the Central Powers in 1918.

Tomorrow: "Germany's Home Front."

This is the sort of benefaction that was common in the era of rugged individualism which the New Dealers have sneeringly denounced. Here was a man who earned a large competence in business and, out of a sense of responsibility to the nation which had made his success possible, left a huge sum of money that will work for that nation's welfare long after his death.

Unfortunately, it also is the sort of benefaction that is becoming increasingly rare under the impact of crushing taxation, the harassing of business and industry and what often seems a studied administration policy eventually to force independent and self-supported educational institutions, large and small, into a common mold, supported by federal subsidy—which in the end means federal control.—Columbus Dispatch.

A Farmer's Diary

Missed the Fight

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WILD PHEASANTS get to be a nuisance sometimes," said a farmer friend who lives north. "Last winter I fed a cock and four hens. They came up around my barn about January 10th—that's the day I sold my steers. At first I coaxed 'em—put out corn and oats down below the barn. The next week the whole dang flock came up to the barnyard and ate with the chickens (I let the hens run around the stack when days are warm).

"The male was a beautiful bird and I admired him every time they come and et. That wild cock looked colorful and dignified among my big white hens.

"Then I got a new White Rock rooster. I paid 20 bucks for him and brought him home and introduced him to my 30 layers. He made himself welcome right away. My wife agreed he was the finest bird o' that breed she ever saw—we was both happy.

"The pheasants kept comin'—and then I saw my prize rooster doin' some philanderin' and wastin' his affections on a particularly pretty pheasant hen. The cock pheasant frowned on the intrusion of the rooster, and one mornin', when he got the chance, he tore out a pretty feather from the middle of the White Rock's back. Things was gettin' too tense in my barnyard—but I couldn't help but wonder if they'd cross, and how the youngsters'd look, if it did happen.

"Then one morning I fed the flock before daylight and went to town for all day. Had a fine time and got back in time for the chores.

"When I went to let the cattle out to water, there, wedged in the corner of the gate, was my prize rooster with hardly a feather left on him. His skin was scratched and his fine red head a mass of blood. The hens were singing and scratching as usual.

"I saw by the tracks in the mud that that pheasant cock had taken his revenge—and ruined my rooster for life. Was I mad! When pheasants get that bold, it's time to call for a gun and control their numbers. But still, and all, before we went to sleep, my wife nudged me and said she b'lieved that rooster got what he deserved and she'd a like to a SEEN it!

"And I asked her what she thought I'd been feedin' the blasted roosters all winter for anyway?"

ere Are Highlights Of FDR Budget Message To Congress

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Highlights from President Roosevelt's budmessage to congress:

I am transmitting herewith a war budget exceeding 100 billions ollars for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1943. * * * This budget ents the maximum program for waging war.

* * * * *

Total war is grim reality. It means the dedication of our lives and urces to a single objective: victory.

* * * * *

In total war we are all soldiers, whether in uniform, overalls shirt sleeves.

* * * * *

Monthly expenditures for war purposes amounted to $2,000,000,000 before Pearl Harbor; they now exceed $6,000,000,000 and they average more than $8,000,000,000 a month during the fiscal year

* * * * *

Victory cannot be bought by any amount of money, however e; victory is achieved by the blood of soldiers, the sweat of cing men and women, and the sacrifice of all people.

* * * * *

Production short of these military requirements would be a beal of our fighting men.

* * * * *

There will be sufficient volume in our bill of fare but less variety. t may hurt our taste but not our health.

* * * * *

Total war demands simplification of American life. By giving what we do not need, all of us will be better able to get what e do need.

* * * * *

We must assure each citizen the necessities of life at prices which an pay.

* * * * *

have read of this bloc, and that bloc, and the other bloc, which led in past congresses. May this new congress confine itself to bloc—a national bloc.

* * * * *

There is no easy, pleasant way to restrict the living habits—the ng, clothing, travel and working habits—of 130,000,000 people. re is no easy, pleasant way to wage total war.

* * * * *

My recommendations contemplate that for the fiscal year 44, 96 cents of every dollar expended by the federal government will be used to pay war costs and interest on the public bt, and only four cents for all the co-called "non-war" purposes.

* * * * *

believe we should strive to collect not less than $16,000,000,000 dditional funds by taxation, savings or both during the fiscal 1944.

* * * * *

In the basis of present legislation, we expect to meet 34 per of the total estimated federal expenditures by current receipts ng the fiscal year 1944. If the objective proposed in this message dopted, we shall meet approximately 50 per cent of expenditures ng the fiscal year 1944.

* * * * *

At a time when wages and salaries are stabilized, the receipt of large incomes from any source constitutes a gross inequity rmining national unity.

* * * * *

Freedom from want for everybody, everywhere, is no longer Utopian dream. It can be translated into action when the fear aggression has been removed by victory.

* * * * *

The soldiers of the fighting forces and the workmen engaged in ary production want to be assured that they will return to a of opportunity and security in a society of free men.

* * * * *

axes probably will never revert to their pre-war level. But subtial reduction from the war level will, nevertheless be possible.

CLEAN UP RENO AS WAR CENTER

Liquor's Still There, But U. S. Orders Prost''tion Out For Duration.

RENO, Nev. —(U.P.)— This city with a reputation for easy divorce and wide-open gambling, is becoming as pure as the snow on the mountains behind it.

At the request of army officials, city and county authorities have outlawed prostitution.

The reason for the re-birth of Reno is the war. This city is in a military zone. The navy has announced it will build a training station at nearby Lake Tahoe and the army has announced an air base near Reno.

New laws are pending to reduce the number of saloons and cabarets. This is sponsored by local authorities as a measure to protect the community from "fly-by-night" operators.

The divorce rate, compared with the marriage rate, continues to decline. Last year there were 25,000 couples married here and only 2,000 divorced.

Last survivors of "the wild west" town are gambling and liquor. When army authorities met with civic leaders to ask a ban on prostitution, ministers joined in urging a ban on gambling and liquor.

But the chuck-a-luck, roulette, dice and poker games continue in Reno's gaudy gambling houses, 24 hours a day. Whisky flows freely in the 74 bars and cabarets.

One minister jumped to his feet at the vice control meeting—"Let's do away with the gambling and the bars, too," he demanded. "I'm sick and tired of having fellow clergymen of my church pointing at me and saying 'Nevada is an outlaw state.'"

Old-timers doubted that any movement to do away with whisky and gambling would get much support. Some said westerners got the habit of drinking when they first came west, because water was very scarce. And, then, too, there wasn't much home life in the early-day mining camps and the boys had to have some place to spend the evenings.

Thus, the Red Dog saloon, Mike's bar, Rattlesnake Inn, Idle Hour Charlie's, the Silver Dollar cabaret—to mention a few of the better known establishments—became the center of activity.

They won't go without a good, healthy fight, the old-timers declare.

AMERICAN NAMES

REYKJAVIK—(INS)— Reykjavik eating places have run through a string of names since the occupation of Iceland — from plain signs announcing "Fish and Chips" to the "Yankee Doodle Inn". But the latest and best for nostalgic troops is "Florida Cafe."

TO ALL MONTGOMERY WARD PEOPLE

1—You are free to join or not to join a union, as you wish. The Company fully respects this privilege. Your opportunity with the Company will be the same whether you are a union member or not.

2—You do not have to join a union to work at Wards.

3—Wards is opposed to all forms of the closed shop. Liberty requires that an employee be free to join, to refuse to join, or to resign from a union without losing his job. Liberty requires that an employer be free to employ the person best suited for the work.

4—The President of the United States has commanded Wards to accept for its Chicago plant a form of closed shop called "maintenance of membership". Under this form of closed shop, employees are not free to resign from the union without losing their jobs. Wards is compelled to discharge every union member who fails to maintain his union membership in good standing (non-payment of dues, etc.). This making of membership in a union a condition of holding a job is the closed shop.

5—Wards did not voluntarily agree to this requirement. Wards believes it to be illegal and uneconomic. Wards has accepted it under duress and only because the President of the United States expressly so ordered.

6—Wards is the only retailer in the United States upon whom the President has imposed any form of the closed shop. It is unfair to impose burdens upon Wards and not upon those with whom it is in competition. If the retail industry is to be subjected to the closed shop requirement, it should be legislated by Congress and applied uniformly against all retail establishments.

7—The National War Labor Board has now called a hearing to determine whether the employees at Wards' six large stores in Denver, Detroit and New York City must belong to the union in order to hold their jobs. Wards will continue to oppose this illegal and uneconomic requirement. Wards will reject any demand of the Board that employees be discharged because they fail to maintain their union membership.

8—The President of the United States has no authority to order Wards employees to remain union members in order to hold their jobs. Congress is the only law-making authority. Congress has passed no law requiring the closed shop.

4 large or 6 medium sized onions

Prune Pudding.

¾ pound prunes
½ cup sugar
Whites 4 eggs

Wash and pick over prunes, cook in cold water to cover until soft. If you use the tenderized prunes you do not need to soak them; if you do not, soak for 2 hours before cooking. HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Jan. 12.

A day in which industry, stability, application and recognition of all duties and obligations may be the foundation for outstanding and long-enduring success. Added to these sterling qualities the mentality will be sedate as well as acute and sagacious, quite keen for taking advantage of opportunities.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the threshold of a year of opportunity for placing the future on a secure and lasting basis. It is probable that public or group interests may be at issue, with proper recognition and solid support, but use strategy if needed, and maintain a firm grip on assets.

A child born on this day should have a brilliant and versatile mind sustained by sterling qualities, uniting to assure success.

Best Ways to Study May Vary With the Subject

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

"Dear Dr. Myers:—You once wrote that it was best for a school child to concentrate on one spelling word until he knew it well before going on to the next. Do you think that also would be best when he studies history and geography? I mean, isn't it best to learn one paragraph well before studying the next one? Or do you think it better to study the whole lesson over for a few times, rather than to take a paragraph at a time?"

Needs Concentration.

When we memorize a selection of prose or poetry, going over and over the whole selection is the best way to learn it by heart, provided we can have the courage to keep at it with good concentration.

In learning ideas rather than memorizing words, as in the study of history and geography, it is better to read a whole chapter through just to get the general trend, then to go back and re-read each paragraph more carefully, turning the paragraph into a sentence of your own words. It is often a good idea to write down the sentence. Then study the next paragraph, and the next in the same way. If the text book has a summary at the end of the chapter it will be helpful to compare your own summary with it.

Hangs Tgether.

In all these examples, each section or paragraph is usually related to what went before or comes after it. It hangs together and can best be interpreted and recalled in these wide relationships.

But when you are learning to spell a list of words or learning by heart a group of number facts, it is better to learn each word or number fact as if there were no others; go over and over it till it is mastered. Suppose, for example, you were a child sitting down to learn to spell the words: angel, dirt, pickle, onion, women.

You should first learn to spell "angel," pronouncing it as you look right at it carefully, repeating its letters in the right order, doing this over and over again till you are sure you can spell that word. Then you would attack the next word in the same manner. There is no sense in learning the words in order, or trying to connect them in any way with one another. Indeed, the repetition of one right after the other easily could hinder more than help in the spelling of either of them.

Same Principle.

As you see, the same principle applies to learning by heart the simple basic addition and subtraction facts. A copy of the 100 simple addition facts and the 100 simple subtraction facts may be had without cost to you by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. Thousands of others have secured these in this way.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. My three-months-old child seems very nervous. Please suggest discipline plan for her.

A. All her discipline till she can creep and walk will depend wholly on your self-discipline. She should not even hear the word no till then. Just teach yourself no, not allowing yourself to do for her or let her have what she wants when you know she shouldn't. Hold yourself strictly to regular routines with her. Try always to be consistent, calm and serene. Rest and relax yourself to these ends.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SAVE YOUR GOOD CARD

Ruffing of a trick by one of the defenders costs you nothing if you have nothing of your own on the trick except worthless cards which would have to be lost anyway. But, if the ruff kills an honor with which you otherwise would take a trick, then it has cost you something. That is the principle underlying your play to the first trick of a suit, which you are able to win in either hand, if you fear the next trick of the suit is going to get trumped.

(Dealer, South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♦	2 ♠	Pass

Some players would prefer 1-No Trump as a response by that North hand, despite the four spades and the lone diamond stopper, because of the even distribution and the desire to have kings led up to instead of through, but that is not the main point here. It arose immediately upon West leading the diamond Q.

The declarer let that run to his A, then used the spade K to knock out the A, and the diamond 9 came back. On went the dummy's K, and East ruffed with the spade 8. It is now easy to see that the declarer also had to lose the third round trick in diamonds and one trick in hearts, so he was down one.

If he had realized that West might have a six-card diamond suit and East therefore a singleton, he should have taken the first trick in the dummy with the diamond K. Then, when West got in with the trump A and led a second diamond, he would have put on a small card from dummy, to be ruffed by East. After that, he would of course play low from his own hand, and so would have lost only two spot cards to the ruff.

This would have enabled him to use his A later for a diamond trick, so that he would have taken two diamond tricks instead of one, and so would have made his contract.

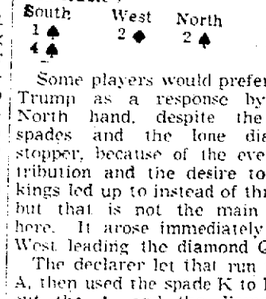
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

After East uses the spade K on the first trick and returns the A, how should South play to make 4-Hearts on this deal?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary understood, as well as I did and probably better, the role the romantic and impetuous Georges was ready to play in her life. That I knew from the look in her eyes and her admission that she would not tell me if the guess I had just made was right.

But I knew Mary was ready, if not especially eager, to aid my scheme for managing Georges.

"The chief thing I want you to do is to turn off your charm," I said.

"You sound as if I were the spigot of a wine barrel," she said, grinning. "Honestly, Auntie Madge, I think them's fightin' words."

"I agree with you," I said. "Nevertheless, you bear this likeness to a spigot—you can turn your charm on or off at an instant's notice. And for this evening, while Georges is in evidence, I want you to be colorless. As for your appearance, you cannot change that without arousing Georges' attention."

Not Conspicuous.

"I'll be good," she said, "but I take it you don't want me to wear my most startling gown?"

"No, I don't," I said. "Being perfectly groomed and coiffed—those things are part of you. But wear the least conspicuous of your gowns, and keep your appearance toned down as near mediocrity as you can manage. You mustn't do anything to make anyone wonder why you wore this or that particular item, but if you'll give the impression that you're tremendously fagged, I think Olina may not suspect anything, especially as Georges—"

"As Georges is a gentleman," Mary broke in, "and won't stage anything in public, that he might observe that I'm using the potential mood—pull off if he had an audience of one."

To Be on Guard.

"Exactly," I said. "Now one thing more. I want you to keep as near Olina as possible during the evening."

"As a stooge, or a foil, or a guard?" she queried saucily.

"As a combination of all three, as needed at any moment. And, if you notice Georges singling you out, put up your right hand and adjust a hairpin as a signal, for I shall be watching closely, and I'll come over and stay near you until I can make some excuse to get you where you won't be near either Georges or Olina."

"I probably shall be glad to get away if Georges starts throwing his weight around," she said, her face suddenly serious. "You've forgotten, perhaps, that Noel also will be at the party. I can remember when fireworks began to start inside him at the mere thought of Georges. Of course that's all past now, but can you imagine Noel's state of mind if Georges shows any sign of carrying a torch for me?"

Startled by a Knock.

"I can, very vividly," I told her, for I had had Noel as well as Olina in mind ever since I overheard Georges' impassioned appeal to Mary.

"And that's as cogent a reason as Olina's plight, for this stunt of yours," she said. "Oh, I know the way your loving, generous heart works, as if I'd put it together. What's that?"

Her last two words had a startled intonation, and I knew the cause of her disquiet. For there had just come to our ears a fumbling at the door knob, then a thrust as though someone were trying to crash though the door.
